ERRITO — City officials nimously Monday night ase the vacant Cerrito for $520,000, in hopes of g it into a movie house landmark.

ity, in conjunction with nds of the Cerrito The- now set to begin raising of the estimated $2 million to turn the building into venue.

thrilled that the council and redevelopment agency has taken the vote to do this and we can move on to raise money for the project," said Pam Challinor, a member of the theater group that has been trying for several months to convince the agency to help save and restore the vacant theater.

The group argued it was a historical artifact that must be saved in part to give the city a sense of identity and a place to congregate.

Used as a furniture warehouse for the past 40 years, the Cerrito, located at San Pablo and Central avenues, was an entertainment hot spot from the 1930s to the 1950s, showing a range of films.

FUNDRAISING

The Friends of Cerrito Theater, a community group working to renovate and restore the theater, invites the community to visit its booth at the annual July 4 Fair at the Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane, to learn more about the building's possible futures for the theater and help kick off a fundraising campaign by taking home a few T-shirts and postcards. The group will be at booths 23-25 at the fair at the El Cerrito Community Center, 7007 Moeser Lane.

Learn more online at www.cerritotheater.org or call 526-8428 or 232-6466 for more information or to volunteer.

DURING EL CERRITO'S annual citywide cleanup on Earth Day in April, The Friends of the Cerrito Theater focused their efforts on the vacant cinema, which was being leased by the city to prevent its conversion to retail space.

Albany considers putting homeowner tax on ballot

By Alan Lopez
STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — Voters may be asked to tax themselves this November to help pay for more than $30 million worth of city infrastructure improvements.

The City Council is considering placing a parcel tax or bond measure on the November ballot to pay for a range of capital improvement projects, including $3 million worth of seismic upgrades at City Hall and the police and fire stations, plus traffic-calming measures and street paving.

The City Council recently approved a list of projects scheduled to be completed throughout the city in the next fiscal year. However a number of projects on the council's wish list were passed by due to lack of money.

"There are a lot of projects that are either underfunded or totally unfunded," said Ann Chaney, community development director. "For example, there's the seismic upgrade to fire facilities and City Hall and police facilities. That's not funded. There's no money for that."

The council is considering a bond measure that would have the city sell a certain number of bonds, for example, $15 million worth, and then tax residents based on their home values to repay the bonds with interest. Or it could propose a parcel tax for homeowners.

City officials figure the tax could cost homeowners more than $100 a year and raise about $15 million. A bond measure or parcel tax would require a two-thirds majority vote to pass.

Albany firefighters sounding alarm over stalemate in contract talks

By Alan Lopez

ALBANY — City officials and firefighters are deadlocked over salary negotiation, leaving firefighters working under an expired contract and the city stuck between firefighter demands and a budget that they say won't allow salary increases.

The 18 Albany firefighters make about 10 percent less than the average of their counterparts at cities along the Interstate 80 corridor, from Piedmont to Hercules. A four-year contract expired in January and firefighters are seeking a salary increase that would bring them up to the area average.

With a starting salary for most Albany firefighters of more than $50,000, they admit they make a good living. But higher salaries in nearby cities are driving new firefighters out of Albany, said fire captain Dustyn Wiggins.

"We typically spend about $13,000 just to get employees in the door, then we invest more time and money into them, then they turn around and leave," Wiggins said. "We're just asking to be compensated for the average for where we're located."

City officials have told firefighters that working with such

Author will explore world of dragonflies

Author and photographer Kathy Biggs will discuss "Dragonflies," at the next meeting of the West Contra Costa County Sierra Club on Wednesday, June 26, at 7:30 p.m. at Northminster Presbyterian Church Makamie Hall, 545 Ashbury Ave., El Cerrito

Biggs began watching dragonflies when she and her husband created a wildlife pond in their backyard and she discovered that there were no guides available to identify the different species that came to visit.

Along with observing dragonflies around California, she began searching libraries, Web sites, and museums to increase her knowledge and understanding.

Her own Web site (www.sonic.net/dragonfly) serves as a supplement to her 96-page booklet "Common Dragonflies of California."

She has also developed a collection of dragonfly slides which she will present and discuss.

Berkeley Farms milk products recall

Berkeley Farms issued a voluntary recall of some of its milk products last week after a routine sampling detected antibiotics in the milk.

Inspectors for the California Department of Food and Agriculture discovered significant quantities of penicillin in milk from the Berkeley Farms plants in Hayward and San Leandro.

No illnesses had been reported when the recall was launched, but individuals who are allergic to antibiotics could have a reaction if they consume the tainted milk.

"There are really two questions: How did it get in the milk, and why did it get past the testing process?" said Berkeley Farms spokesman David Margulies.

Jay Van Rein, a spokesman for the California Department of Food and Agriculture, said the department did not yet have answers to those questions. Van Rein said he did not know how much penicillin had tainted the milk, but said it was probably a significant amount.

The following brands of milk with the plant codes 06-407 and 06-21 are included in the recall: Berkeley Farms, Dairy Dawn, Ralph's, Mountain Dairy, Sysco (Wholesome Farms), Smart and Final, Albertson's, Good Day and Best Yet.

Almost all the contaminated milk was pulled from grocery store shelves immediately, Margulies said.

Consumers were advised to throw away any product named in the recall, or return it to the store for a refund.

Energy-saving tips for vacation season

With East Bay schools wrapping up classes last week, many families are now planning their summer vacations. PG&E says families should consider adding one more item to their vacation "to do" list — making sure their homes don't waste energy and run up unnecessary power bills when they are away.

To manage your utility bill and reduce energy consumption, Pacific Gas and Electric Company offers these vacation suggestions:

■ Switch electric water heaters "off" or set to a minimal setting.

■ Set gas water heaters to minimal heat settings.

■ Set the furnace system and air conditioner to the "off " position. A reminder to those vacationing from cold winter climates, if household temperatures drop below 32 degrees Fahrenheit while you are away leave some heat on to prevent pipes from freezing.

■ Turn waterbed heaters "off" during the summer.

If for security reasons, you wish to provide the appearance of an occupied house, use automatic timers for strategic lighting and radios tuned to stations airing talk programs.

Consider unplugging appliances and electronic devices that continue to use energy, even when turned off. These can include televisions, VCR's clock radios and microwaves.

Turn your computer and other home office equipment off – not just in the "sleep" mode while you're away.

EL CERRITAN Vern Green, a compiler and amateur historian, displays one of his many albums.

Compiler' gathers stories of lifetimes

CLARA-RAE GENSER
Community Folk

Vern Green calls himself a compiler. And that is what he does. An amateur historian, he compiles into albums the many, many things that interest him or have interested him through the years, including stories, pictures, anecdotes and lists.

As you enter the attractive home that he and his late wife, Lola, built in El Cerrito, you see neat piles of albums, some of different colors, throughout the living room. Those red ones under the side table are all albums of stories, pictures and anecdotes that cover the happy life he and Lola enjoyed. One of those on the antique chest is about Lola's passing, and the many loving cards he received from friends and family. And that album's cover is different from the others, having been decorated by his niece.

But the albums that excite the delight those who come to his home to browse and enjoy are those which fulfill his amateur historian's interest: The 20th Century; Memories of World War II; Passing Parade: Lifetime of Memories; the Travel Group: 5 Hoberg's Lake Golf Courses; and 24 Years in Contra Costa County; Travel; Growing Up in the 1920s, and more..

For his albums, Green asks friends, relatives and acquaintances to give him stories, pictures, anecdotes — anything that has to do with his current interest. Thus, in the 20th Century and in World War II he has stories of many people in addition to his own and those of his family. Neatly printing in his left hand, using very small but clear letters, interspersed pictures, and with headings, each page is a story of someone whose memory or existence is strongly identified with the subject of the album. He makes the page colorful by highlighting sentences or paragraphs with various color highlighters, so that each page is easy and fun to read. He has also invited me to write my own story for the Memories of World War II, and I am flattered to be included.

The albums of The Golf Club in Hoberg has to do with the many years that he and Lola had a summer home in the area, and the group with whom he played golf for all of those happy years.

Vern Green is an interesting man because he is so interested in others, and in everything, and eager to include it all in his albums. He is open and friendly and willing to talk about his life.

The first thing you notice, as Green talks about himself, is that he has led a good, satisfying life, in spite of an early handicap. Born in Albany (and he was able to show me a picture of the home in which he was born, and where his mother lived most of her life), Vern says "six years after FDR was hit with polio, I was hit with polio in my right leg." It was after he had given blood for a neighbor girl, though he doesn't know if that caused it.

However, Vern was more fortunate that FDR. He was able to overcome the polio to a great extent. Although he has always limped on that leg, he forced himself to go into sports, playing in both high school and college, and doing things such as being a lifeguard at the pool during the summer.

Green says he was out of school for about 1½ years, so he was always behind, but all the kids helped him, and "I had a great family and a good home life, so those were all pluses."

During the '20s, Green remembers, they lived two doors from the Oaks Theater on Solano, and the family ran the Oaks Confectionery. "The whole family was in on it," he says, and smiles, "And I got into the Oaks Theater for nothing."

His education included Berkeley High School and UC Berkeley in both undergrad and graduate work, then working as a student teacher. He would teach all day, then, a couple of times a week dash to San Francisco, where he played water polo with the Olympic group.

He did his student teaching in the Oakland schools, and stayed with them for his entire teaching career. He taught in many of the Oakland schools, became an elementary assistant, and then a vice principal. His first school as a principal was Grant school, on Oakland's "Pill Hill," but he was principal in many Oakland schools. "I had a wonderful career," he says, "And I appreciate every moment of it. Parents, staff, kids, I still miss them all terribly."

When Vern and Lola, met she was just finishing up in college. They married in 1953. She taught math in the Berkeley schools, heading the math department during her last five years of teaching. "I lost my wife 3½ years ago. We had a great life."

Green speaks of his post-teaching work at Foley and Bonnie men's clothier at El Cerrito Plaza, which he enjoys, of the traveling he and Lola did in Europe, Asia, Mexico, Hawaii, and of the hobby that started during those years, and has only increased since he has been alone: being a compiler.

As I browsed through some of his albums, it was amazing to see how completely he caught the character of the person he was covering, and how interesting he made the perusal of the albums. They are unique. I have never seen anything like them.

"I like detail," Green admits, and he must, because every detail of every page is carefully covered. They are a browser's dream. And they are Vern Green's joy.

Nancy Hayes told me about Verne Green, and I thank her for that. You were right, Nancy, he is fascinating.And I invite all of you to give me your interesting people, events, etc. Please write to me at 555 Pierce St., #443, Albany, CA 94706 or call 525-4585. My email is crggenser@aol.com.

Of men wise and foolish, and some high-achieving youths

MARTIN SNAPP
Snapp Shots

I was watching that odious little toad, Jerry Falwell, calling the prophet Mohammed a pederast on CNN last Thursday night, and I wondered: Why is this guy still being interviewed? Didn't he and his pal, Pat Robertson, blow all their credibility right after Sept. 11 with their bash-America screed about how it's all our own fault for tolerating homosexuals?

That next story was about the death of a San Francisco cop named Jon Cook, who was killed in a car crash chasing a suspect wanted for what police are calling a vicious case of wife-abuse (torture is more like it, judging from the reports). Jon Cook was the first openly gay San Francisco police officer killed in the line of duty.

Later that night, I got an e-mail about a rugby game next week in honor of Mark Bingham, the former Cal rugby star who was one of the heroes of Flight 93. Mark Bingham was gay, too.

I'm not gay, but even I can't help wondering: Just who are the true role models here? A guy who tries to pit us against each other or two guys who gave their lives to save the rest of us?

And who is Falwell to judge anybody, anyway? The Baptist Church, of which he is a member, has a long and honorable history of helping the downtrodden and encouraging religious tolerance — two traditions that Falwell has noticeably not incorporated into his own ministry.

Judge not, Jerry, lest ye be judged.

It's been a good year for the Montera Middle School Toros. The eighth-grade boys' basketball team won the Oakland Park & Recreation League championship. And the girls' "A" basketball team went undefeated until the final game of the season, when they upset in the league championship game by the Edna Brewer Middle School Panthers.

And in the crowning triumph, the Montera mathletes won the Oakland All-Star Mathematics Competition, defeating such traditional powerhouses as Piedmont, Hillcrest, Edna Brewer, Roosevelt and The Art School. Led by Captain Darren Pagan and Vice-Captain Jimmy Feeny, the Toros took possession of the coveted Mathletes Plaque, which now proudly resides in the trophy case in the school cafeteria for the next year.

The individual mathletes got certificates of achievement, had their names read over the school intercom during first period, and — best of all — munched free pizza, courtesy of principal Cheryl Rodby.

"They deserved it," said faculty sponsor Narine Namraj. "The worked hard for it, all on their own time."

The team — Darren, Jimmy, Joseph Marrama, Ivan Lee, Nimrod Micael, Alex Hinton, Traci Zirbel, Richard Couch, Daniel Belay, Lacy Billingsly and Andrew Liu — deftly fielded questions about Probability, Number Theory, Algebra, Geometry, Permutation and Combination, Logic, and Geometric and Arithmetic Sequences.

And these weren't Mickey Mouse questions, either. Try answering all these questions in just three minutes:

1. An integer, N = 123, 456, A8B, is an odd number divisible by 9.

Find the digits A and B so that N is as large as possible.

2. Today is June 21, 2002. What day of the week will it be on June 21, 2010? (Don't forget to take into account leap years.)

3. What are the next three terms of the sequence 1, 8, 27, 64... likely to be?

Congratulations, kids. And, of course, go Toros!

Congratulations, too, to Alex Hirsch, who flew away last week with the Leonard J. Waxdeck Trophy as the winner of the 37th Annual Piedmont High School Bird Calling Contest.

Alex's bluesy rendition of the Little Blue Heron upset last year's winners, Jill Pervere and Rachel Winograd, who finished a strong second with their hilarious version of the Emperor Goose. Third place went to Cody Craig, who soloed on the mating call of the White Tailed Ptarmigen.

One of the not-very-disappointed contestants was Mercedes Patton, the first with four feet in contest history. Mercedes, a cuddly little dog of uncertain ancestry, joined her owners - freshman Michael Patton and senior Amy Patton — in the call of the White Pelican.

That is, she was supposed to join them. But when her big moment came, she failed to bark on cue.

"I can't understand it," Amy said afterward. "She did it every time in practice. But when we got out on stage, all she wanted to do was lick Michael's face."

This year's contest featured a shocking departure from tradition: For the first time in memory, the judges actually knew something about bird calling.

They were Jack Laws, a bird expert from the California Academy of Sciences; Nancy DeStefanis, director of the Stow Lake Education Project; Steve Austin, longtime counselor; and Jay Knowland, who was the winner of the very first Piedmont High School Bird Calling Contest back in 1963 when it began as a class project in the late Leonard J. Waxdeck's biology class.

And how did they prepare for their awesome responsibilities as contest judges?

"I put new batteries in my hearing aids," said Austin.

"I had eggs for breakfast this morning," said Laws.

Finally, don't forget the extraordinary "Garden of Memory" concert of new music this afternoon at the Chapel of the Chimes columbarium in North Oakland.

Actually, it's 25 different concerts taking place simultaneously in 25 different rooms. And each room was designed by the great architect, Julia Morgan. The fun starts at 5 p.m. and lasts 'til sundown. A splendid time is guaranteed for all.

Alameda County Fair is a good time as ever

Maybe you've never had a reason for making the trek to the Southern Alameda County city of Pleasanton or even thought about going there. If so, you should consider doing it in the next two weeks.

The 90th Alameda County Fair, opening today for a two-week run at the fairgrounds in Pleasanton, is one of the best and least-appreciated bets for summer entertainment. Attractions that were popular when the fair started in 1912 — farm animals, horse racing, homemade crafts and art — are still flourishing and popular today. Like an old-time carnival, there's a midway with rides, sideshows, hucksters and salespeople. Other attractions that have become popular over the years are incorporated. Just as interesting, the fair offers a look at the widely varied things the county has to offer, things you would never be aware if you never left one part of the county to explore another.

There's big-name entertainment (just three years ago you could have seen Johnny Cash and June Carter in a free show at the amphitheater), popular local entertainment and no-name entertainment. In fact, some of the best shows are put on by young musicians and dancers exhibiting their talents.

Even if none of the above appeals to you (and there's bound to be something there that does), there's another aspect: It's simply one of the year's best events for sitting on the lawn, relaxing on a bench in the shade and just people-watching. Every aspect of Alameda County is here in a leisurely setting, all strolling the grounds, having a corn dog or an ear of corn, all sweltering together in the heat. (Hot weather is the great equalizer at big events, but be warned and bring a sweater because it can get cool in the evening).

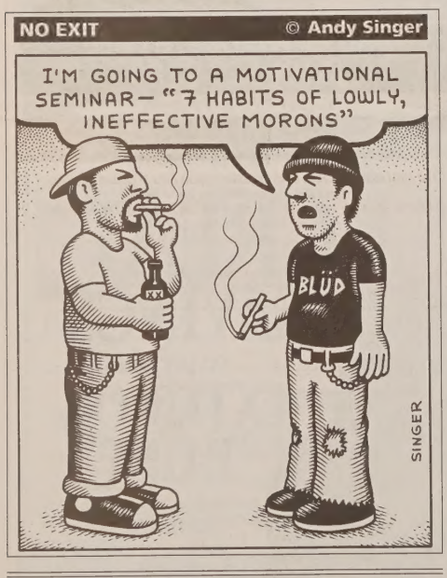

Grab some sunglasses and a floppy hat and get on down to Pleasanton (there are even shuttles from the Pleasanton BART station). For $7, it's not just a few hours' entertainment — you can easily spend all day.

Given all the dramatic changes in the county over the past 90 years it's remarkable and reassuring to have an event stay so true to its origins.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A wise decision in support of Cerrito Theater

I would like to applaud the El Cerrito City Council for its farsighted decision to purchase the historic Cerrito Theater. As several council members noted, there was overwhelming community support for saving the theater.

The plan does have critics, of course. But much of their criticism misses the point because it assumes this is simply an issue of the city helping a private business, or of the city entering the movie business.

What the project is really about, however, is saving an important historic resource, a surprisingly well-preserved neighborhood movie theater from the 1930s, complete with Art Deco murals, lights and exquisite glasswork.

It would be a very different story if the city simply decided to buy a piece of land and build a movie house as a speculative business venture. But in this case, the city is preserving a historically important building — and then finding a use for it that complements its historic value.

Yes, many people are supporting the plan because they hope the old Cerrito Theater will again become a cinema. But as the council has made clear, that is only one possible option for this building.

In my mind, it is the best option. But wonderful old theaters like the Cerrito have been restored and used for other purposes — including bookstores, libraries, community centers, and restaurants. Such creative "adaptive re-use," as preservationists term it, might be the Cerrito's fate as well.

It is also clear the city is making a wise investment. There are fewer and fewer vintage movie houses left. Their value will only increase as years go by. Fifty years from now, or 100, whether the Cerrito Theater is operating as a movie theater or not, people will visit, admire the murals and the art from a long-ago era, and will be entranced.

Compensate fairly

I've recently been made aware of a very serious issue that potentially affects the well-being of all Albany residents. Over the last few years, we have lost, and continue to lose, many highly skilled firefighters and paramedics to nearby cities and nothing seems to be stopping this trend.

As a 39-year Albany resident, I've been spoiled by the outstanding service our fire department provides. Recently, during the illness and subsequent passing of my father, the Albany Fire Department went above and beyond the necessary medical care to meet the varied needs of my family time and time again. I have come to expect no less than that.

City Council members, as elected officials, have a difficult job of trying to balance the various needs of the residents. I certainly hope they would agree with my friends, neighbors and me that fire and EMS services should be at the top of the priority list.

Having lost both of my parents, the only thing keeping me as a resident of Albany is the quality of service and protection provided by our fire department, which I have benefited from thus far. Paying below-average wages does nothing to attract the quality personnel needed to maintain the current quality of life in Albany.

The City Council recognized the need to raise the city administrator's salary in order to recruit the quality individual we currently employ. Isn't it high time the same level of importance be placed on recruiting, but more importantly retaining, the personnel who may be called upon at any moment to save our lives?

When it comes to spending my tax dollars, I feel it's past due that our above-average firefighters are appropriately compensated.

City unsupportive

We are confused and disappointed by the city of El Cerrito's attitude toward the recent sister cities event.

In December, before the deadline for El Cerrito's bi-annual publication, we hand-carried an article on sister cities to be included. When the publication came out, however, there was nothing in it about sister cities.

Also in December, we submitted paperwork asking for financial support for the sister cities celebration. We were asked to wait until May 6 (two weeks before the event) to formally present our request.

We asked for $1,000, matching what Richmond had given us, but the city refused, saying it did not want to set a precedent. To what precedent was the city referring in denying our request for $1,000?

Last year El Cerrito City Council gave $50,000 to Contra Costa Civic Theatre. We also understand that group is allowed to occupy a city-owned building virtually without cost.

This year, the city somehow "found" $30,000 to pay rent on the Cerrito Theater site in order to hold the option open for possible future purchase.

Both the above projects are worthy of city support — but so is ours.

If the city could come up with $80,000 for the two theaters, it seems ludicrous it couldn't come up with $1,000 for a festival celebrating its good relations with its sister city, Richmond, and enthusi

We are fortunate in this area to have many children in our schools who were born, or whose parents were born, in another country. We can learn a great deal by simply encouraging parents to share their stories with their children and families to share their stories with one another.

Social studies also includes skills that you might not expect. In addition to understanding maps, students are expected to understand such things as flow charts and timelines, for example.

Social studies is an important subject but not always a favorite among students. I have found that children often are more excited about learning about places they have visited or lived or where their relatives and friends live.

Having visited a historic site or seen items in a museum is going to make that textbook seem much more relevant when they get back in school.

In addition to the subjects I've written about in this series — reading, writing, math, science, and social studies — there are, of course, other areas you might want to explore during the summer. It's a great time to learn another language, practice a sport or music or explore visual arts.

This area is rich in resources for such explorations including the Richmond Art Center (www.therichmondartcenter.org, 510-620-6772) the East Bay Center for the Performing Arts in Richmond (www.eastbaycenter.org, 510-234-5624), the various city recreation departments and other groups such as youth sports leagues and the YMCA (www.ymcaeastbay.org, 510-412-5647).

You may well just want to focus on finding a fun way to learn the core subjects or exploring one of these more recreational areas and not worry about whether it corresponds specifically to anything your child will need for school.

But if you are interested in what your child will be expected to learn next school year, a good source is the state content standards, available at www.cde.ca.gov/standards.

There are so many separate items under each topic, you could go nuts trying to hit them all. But it is useful to know whether your child will be studying California, U.S. or world history next year and what time period will be covered.

The standards also help drive home the fact that each subject area includes a broader range of material than might be obvious.

Learn to use native plants, build habitats

Calling all wildlife gardeners or those wanting to become one.

The Aquatic Outreach Institute is offering a four-day, hands-on workshop this summer to teach Contra Costa County residents to use native plants to create gardens that offer habitat for birds, butterflies and other wildlife.

The session, which begins Aug. 1, includes field trips to local gardens, presentations by local experts and various hands-on activities. Graduates of the program are expected to volunteer at least 50 hours at a local school, garden or organization to help establish or improve a wildlife habitat garden. Upon completion of volunteer hours participants will receive a $150 stipend.

Participants should be able to attend all four training days, which are Aug. 1 6-9 p.m., Aug. 3, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Aug. 10, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Aug. 13, 6-9 p.m.

The sessions will be held at Bancroft Elementary School in Walnut Creek and Diablo Valley Community College in Pleasant Hill.

Space in the workshop is limited. The cost for attending is $25.

For more information contact Lisa Lacabanne at the Aquatic Outreach Institute at 510-231-5783 or check on the Web at www.aoinstitute.org.

WORKERS EXAMINING beneath the stucco siding of the Albany Community Center are finding areas in need of repair. The city budget is unable to fund needed work on the center and other projects and the city is considering a tax to meet those needs.

Tax

Either measure could be used to fund ongoing maintenance for city facilities such as the senior and community centers as well as individual projects such as acquiring a permanent maintenance center.

Other projects up for consideration include acquiring property adjacent to Interstate 80 to develop Pierce Street Park at a cost of $2.5 million, implementing a streetscape improvement plan for San Pablo and Solano avenues at a cost of $5 million and $1.5 million respectively, and $6 million worth of traffic-calming projects throughout the city.

Chaney said it's common for the city to have a number of unfunded improvement projects because it lacks a solid sales-tax base to pay for them.

"We are one of those cities that just doesn't have a real strong tax base because we are primarily residential or small business, and those small businesses — while we are grateful to have them — they just don't generate a lot of revenue," Chaney said.

On top of that, a lot of property tax has been redirected to the state, according to Councilman Allan Maris.

"The city's been hurt for a long time from the state's handling of our property tax," Maris said. "The city of Albany only receives 15 or 20 percent of the property tax collected." He said the city used to collect between 20 and 25 percent of the total amount.

The city uses no money from its general fund to pay for improvement projects and relies on grants, existing fees and taxes to pay for improvements, said City Administrator Beth Pollard.

The most recent tax measures were Measure N, which passed in 2000 to pay for added paramedics, and Measure R in 1996, which created an assessment district to pay for creek and ballfield restoration and acquisition of open space on Albany Hill.

At its July 1 meeting, the City Council will consider placing a tax on the November ballot and discuss projects that could be funded.

A survey by consultant firm Godbe Research concluded residents would favor a parcel tax if they knew what the money would go to and the firm suggested the city develop a public information campaign.

"The thrust of (Godbe's) conclusions is that there is community interest in projects the city has identified to be constructed, and there is a willingness to fund such projects through a tax measure," said Pollard.

Councilman Jon Ely said it's likely that if a tax is considered, the council would want to figure out what the biggest priorities are and then place a tax measure on the ballot that would fund just those projects.

"It has to be incremental and identifying the most important needs first," Ely said.

In the meantime, the council approved a five-year capital improvement plan at its June 17 meeting that addresses parks, streets, building facilities and more.

The projects scheduled to be completed in the next fiscal year include:

- Repaving the eastbound lane of Buchanan Street from Cleveland to San Pablo avenues and completing the Buchanan-Eastshore Highway connection.
- Remodeling the teen center and improving Catherine's Walk through tree removal, concrete removal, repair, grading and landscaping.
- Updating playground equipment, improving drainage and resurfacing the tennis courts at Memorial Park; and improving field lighting, public restrooms and the picnic area at Ocean View Park.
- Improving the sewer facilities and storm drains, both of which are funded through a sewer charge to property owners.

There will also be a number of projects in the planning stages, including creating a bicycle route to connect the Ohlone Greenway and the Bay Trail; restoring Codornices Creek; upgrading Solano Avenue from Masonic to Santa Fe avenues; and relocating the city's ball fields.

Contract

a tight budget, there's simply no money to go around for pay raises.

"I certainly appreciate the work the firefighters do for us and we want to pay them as much as we can afford," said Councilman Allan Maris, but added, "part of the problem is other cities might be awarding large salary increases which Albany might have difficulty affording."

With contract negotiations at an impasse, a neutral contract mediator was recently brought in to settle negotiations between the city and firefighters.

There has been little progress, however, and the firefighters association has asked residents to speak on their behalf to the council, erecting signs at City Hall proclaiming that paramedic and firefighter services are in jeopardy. Most of the calls handled by firefighters are medical emergencies.

Wiggins said the signs refer to the possible future loss of experienced firefighters to other cities if salaries continue to stay low and thus discourage potential employees.

The department lost five firefighters in the last few years due to low pay, Wiggins said, and has spent thousands of dollars on overtime to cover for the vacancies and recruit and train new employees.

"We're thinking that everything we're asking for is good business sense," said fire captain Jay Jorgensen, "and we think the council believes that too. But the public response needs to turn up the heat and back them into a corner to make some kind of agreement."

Several people spoke to the council on the fire fighters' behalf at two recent meetings.

Bob Roberts, a former contract negotiator for the Albany Fire Department, said it's typical for cities to keep salaries as low as possible and that a way to get an increase is to apply public pressure.

Salaries can be increased, he said but it "depends on what the people and the city are telling the elected officials what they want."

City officials said they want to reach an agreement with the firefighters but haven't come out in favor of raising salaries.

Wiggins said firefighters will continue to deliver medical and fire services, with or without a raise. He said firefighters get a lot of job satisfaction responding to emergency calls and receiving positive feedback from the public.

"We enjoy the services we provide to the citizens," he said.

Media coverage is topic of ECDC meeting

The El Cerrito Democratic Club's June 25 meeting will feature Andrea Buffa of Media Alliance, speaking on "Making Sense of News Media Coverage."

The event begins at 8 p.m. and will be preceded by a club business meeting at 7:30 p.m. It will take place at Northminster Presbyterian Church, 545 Ashbury Ave.

Buffa, journalist and former executive director of Media Alliance, will review the nature of news coverage by a corporate and concentrated news media today, how it differs from the past, what its implications are for the concept of an educated electorate, and what can and should be done about it.

San Francisco-based Media Alliance is a 25-year-old nonprofit organization working to promote fairness and accuracy in the media.

County OKs land swap for animal shelt

■ Deal is approved after three weeks of discussion, but the details of the transfer have yet to be ironed out by the board

By Peter Felsenfeld
STAFF WRITER

Three times has proven a charm for West County critter lovers ... sort of.

For the third straight week, the Contra Costa Board of Supervisors on Tuesday discussed approving a land swap with Pinole's Redevelopment Agency that would clear the way for a new animal shelter.

And for the third time, county and city officials failed to finalize the details of the transfer. Described as minor sticking points, the details had led to delays in getting the shelter project under way.

But this week, the board went ahead and approved the deal anyway, directing staff members to take care of the fine print later.

"From what I can see, the board did the right thing," said Rose Lernberg, an animal advocate from El Cerrito. "They have to have a deed that's acceptable, and apparently this one isn't yet."

Supervisors plan to award construction contracts July 9 for new shelters in Martinez and Pinole, both planned for land near existing facilities.

Together the buildings will hold around 200 more dogs than the current shelters.

San Rafael-based Amoroso Construction stands poised to win the Martinez contract with a $7.6 million low bid; Concord-based Robert L. Brown Construction presented the low $1.3 million offer for the Pinole facility. The bids expire July 19.

Board members expressed grave reservations about approving the transfer without all the details in place.

Pinole officials recently assured the board that the swap was essentially a done deal.

However, supervisors and the public got a glimpse Tuesday morning of the real conflict behind the scenes as Pinole's project manager Marcus Tartt bickered with county legal officials over terms of the transfer.

"Herding cats seems like it would be easier than building these two animal shelters," said Supervisor Mark DeSaulnier of Concord. "We're really trying to do something good, but we seem to be on the verge of snatching defeat from the jaws of victory."

The board could have taken the same action last week, but chose instead to live dangerously and ask Brown for a bid extension. Brown's bid was set to expire June 20, and County Administrator John Sweeten advised supervisors to wait a week between approving the land swap and the contracts.

Though Brown granted the extension, the county risked having to re-issue a request for proposals and indefinitely delay the project.

At the time, Supervisor Gayle Uilkema of Lafayette said the board's decision to [illegible] incomplete contract [illegible] sound fiscal management [illegible] economic times.

Both shelters are [illegible] district.

On Tuesday, Uilkema [illegible] was not completely [illegible] with the board's decision.

"Until we have a report, we run the risk of a contract for [illegible] own," she said. "[illegible] has tried to avoid that."

In 1939, the city of San Francisco hosted the Golden Gate Fair, an international exhibition to celebrate the construction of the Golden Gate and Bay bridges.

Engineers constructed an island below the Bay Bridge and christened it Treasure Island. The 1939 fair was celebrated on this island.

Some hoped fairgoers would look beyond the bay and its bridges into the East Bay hills.

Builders did their best work constructing state-of-the-art homes there. Busloads of prospective buyers trekked from Treasure Island to experience up-to-the-minute home-building technology. One of the homes on the tour at 100 Pershing Drive in Oakland belonged to candy maker George Cardinet. His home boasted the latest amenities including hot running water to all the baths in the home.

The five-bedroom, four-and-one-half bath home is situated on a half acre of real estate with some unique views. Not only can one see the centerpieces of the 1939 celebration —the Golden Gate and Bay bridges, but there are unobstructed views of both San Francisco and downtown Oakland as well.

The gated walkway and manicured gardens lead you into an impressive foyer and an expansive living room with views of San Francisco Bay. The home's well-appointed library could serve as your office. Work as you enjoy the view of the flowering gardens outside.

The home's kitchen is ready for the gourmet to step in and work some magic on the six-burner Viking range. A Subzero refrigerator, granite counters and custom cabinetry help make the experience a joy.

A butler's pantry adjoins the kitchen at one end, a breakfast nook the other. The breakfast nook opens to the deck and den. A curved hallway separates the master suite from the other four upstairs bedrooms. The guest room has a terrace with a view of the bay.

The home's modern updates include a Bang & Olufsen wired sound system, a home theater with a wall-mounted 42-inch NEC PlasmaSync and DSL and ISDN connections in the library.

This home is offered at $2,195,000. To learn more, call Pacific Union's Helen Danhaki at 510-338-1356 or Coldwell Banker's Carol Luckenbach at 415-229-1386.

Candy maker, horseman George Cardinet

■ Original owner of 100 Pershing Drive invented Abba-Zaba bar

BY DENNIS EVANOSKY
SECTION ED.TOR

Born on April 8, 1909, George Cardinet traces his California roots to his grandfather Emil Cardinet. Emil arrived in San Francisco in 1848. Like many others of his generation, he headed for the gold fields. When he returned to San Francisco, he played a role in starting the city's farmers market. In 1850, he joined those who formed the Citizens' Vigilance Committee to rid the city of crime.

George started the Cardinet Candy Co. The company won the love and taste buds of candy lovers all over the world. His company made the famous Abba-Zaba bar — a delicious mix of vanilla taffy and peanut butter. The company also produced the UN-O bar with its the smooth, rich milk chocolate truffle-like center, covered with milk chocolate and ground almonds.

He was also an accomplished equestrian. In 1939, he bought a ranch in Concord, which backed up to Mount Diablo.He began forging trails in what is now the state park. George and his fellow riders blazed single-track trails on the eastern slope of Mount Diablo State Park.

According to the Web site, horsequest.com, George helped build more than 200 miles of trails throughout the East Bay. He was one of the leaders of the California State Trails Plan and a key advocate in 1968 to establish the National Trails Act. President Lyndon Johnson invited him to the signing of the bill in 1968.

George also initiated the establishment of the Juan Bautista De Anza National Historical Trail, which became law in 1990. According to Nancy Dupont, executive director of Heritage Trails in Walnut Creek, George organized the 1,000-mile reenactment of de Anza's trek to California in 1776.

Some historians have called de Anza the greatest pathfinder of all time. George determined that de Anza and his gallant brave men, women and children (116 of the 240 participants in the 1776 trek were children) and their history-making expedition should have continuing recognition.

With this resolve, a campaign to establish the route of the Anza Expedition as a National Historic Trail was begun in 1980.

He also insisted on the inclusion of the Pacific Crest National Scenic Trail into the National Trails Act as a sister trail to the Appalachian Trail in the east.

What's that? You've never tried an Abba-Zaba or an UN-O bar? In 1978, Annabelle Candies in Hayward bought the rights to the bars.You can satisfy your curiosity and those taste buds by logging onto www.candywarehouse.com. Click on brands, then Annabelle. A box of 24 Abba-Zaba bars is only $13.20; the UN-Os $15.60. The minimum order is $35, so you might as well go for 500 Abba-Zaba chunks for only $60.That might be enough for a whole summer — unless you love chocolate as much as I do.

■ Showings provide a non-threatening environment for a prospective buyer

NMAN NEWS FEATURES

DIAN HYM

Public open houses are a mainstay of the residential real estate business. But, are they really necessary?

Recently a Piedmont homeowner visited a few public open houses in her neighborhood before listing her home for sale. She was appalled at what she saw. The open houses were filled more with curious neighbors than with legitimate buyers.

She resolved to sell her home without having public open houses. The house sold for the price she wanted, and it was never held open to the public.

Would the house have sold for more with public open house exposure? We'll never know. But the listing agent received numerous inquiries from prospective buyers who wanted to know when the listing would be open.

They were unwilling to make a private appointment to see the listing, so they never saw it before it sold.

You might be thinking that nothing was lost; these buyers were less than serious. Not necessarily. Some buyers avoid making an appointment to see a new listing because they don't want to feel pressured into making a decision. However, if the home is open, they'll stop by and take a look.

An open house provides a non-threatening environment for a prospective buyer to preview the property.

HOME SELLER TIP: A good reason to have your home help open to the public is that some buyers actually find the home they buy at an open house. Sometimes buyers are new to an area and find a house they love by chance.

Often buyers who are looking with an agent are sent to an open house, particularly when a listing is new on the market. Sometimes buyers even stop by to see a listing that wasn't recommended by their agent and discover the listing is the one they want to own.

Internet beginning to hit home with real estate buyers

BY BEV MUNCER
COLDWELL BANKER

■ Buying a home ain't what it used to be...and that's good

In the old days (say, a year ago) homebuyers would scour the Sunday paper looking at listings and open houses. Then they would call their agent to see the prospects they spotted and hop into the car and head out for a long day of looking at those three-bedroom fixer-uppers.

They often did not turn out to be quite as "quaint" as the ads made them seem.

All that seems to be changing as the Internet begins to make serious inroads into the real estate industry. More and more buyers are using the Internet to take their first cut at what is available on the market and to get a much more realistic view — literally — of their next home. Instead of hopping into the family car, Mom and Dad may take their first tour on their home computer in their PJs from the comfort of their den.

By the time they head out to actually look at a handful of homes, they have narrowed the prospects considerably and eliminated a lot of the surprises and disappointments along the way.

Today, nearly three out of four Americans use the Internet to some degree. According to a study by UCLA and the California Association of Realtors, Internet buyers research homes more than a month before contacting an agent. As a result, they spend about a third as much time as traditional buyers looking with their agent prior to buying. Why are a growing number of homebuyers using the Internet?

The UCLA-CAR study found that these consumers feel more in control of the home-buying process, understand home values better, and can shorten the process of physically viewing home and actually buying.

These statistics underscore the importance of Internet technology and virtual home tours to homebuyers and sellers, and to agents themselves. Clearly buyers enjoy the convenience of shopping for a new home from the comfort of their residence or office, instead of before driving around.

"Hundreds of thousands of home seekers log on to the Internet every day to scout out the market. As you're reading this column, a buyer somewhere else in the U.S. or even overseas is online searching for homes in Northern California.

In recent years, the nation's real estate brokerages have responded to the tech interests of consumers and have started putting more and more information on their company Web sites.

Until recently, that information — whether it be listings or virtual tours — was limited to the homes that their company was selling and no one else's. That meant that consumers had to go from one Web site to another to another to get a complete picture of what is available.

That's beginning to change, thanks to a new national policy known as broker reciprocity or Internet Data Exchange (IDX), adopted by the National Association of Realtors.

Broker reciprocity requires that the Multiple Listing Services provide a means for brokers to share property listings with other broker Web sites.

With IDX, MLS's provide their brokers with technology to help them not only display their own listings but also those of competing brokers as well.

The new policy opened the door for Coldwell Banker to launch a consumer service-based Web site. The site is the first to showcase all home listings posted on the Northern California's nine Multiple Listing Services. The new Web site, www.CaliforniaMoves.com provides consumers with an inventory of estimated more than 25,000 homes listed for sale in the region at any given time, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

Sites like this give buyers and sellers a one-stop-shop for their housing needs. They can view pictures of a home that meets their interest.

They can even take a "virtual tour" of the home. They can receive e-mail notifications of newly listed homes that meet their property search criteria.

They can also search "comparables" of homes in all Northern California neighborhoods. They are able to create an open home tour (complete with driving directions).

More and more buyers are using the Inte[illegible] take their first cut at what is available o[illegible] market and to get a much more realist[illegible] — literally — of their next home.

They can get demographic and community information on schools, museums and galleries, performance halls, sports and recreation, transportation and other city-specific information — all with the click of a computer mouse and from the [illegible] of their own home.

Appraisal Fee. Whether purchasing or refinancing, the home must retain enough value for the lender to feel secure. Traditionally appraisals are based on sales comparables (You know, where somebody bought a house kind of like yours, with similar square footage, bedrooms and baths but was completely different?). Normally for a single family home, owner occupied under 3,000 square feet, the fee runs from $350 to $400. Owner occupied above 3000 square feet usually runs from $500 to $550.

Non- Owner Occupied (Investor Rentals must include a Rent Survey) — Single family homes are $450 to $600; two to four units are $600 to $700. The appraisal fee is usually paid directly (COD) to the appraiser or to the bank.

Document Preparation. This is the lender's fee, whether working with a bank or a broker. Once a lender has your file, there are three main functions they perform: Processing and Underwriting, drawing Loan Documents and Funding. Every lender has a different price tag on these functions, but the gross broad range is from $500 to $700.

Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI). All loans have PMI, but if your loan to value is greater than 80 percent, you get to pay the premium. This is a fee to protect the lender's risk. If the borrower(s) defaults, the insurance protects the mortgage holder. Some lenders today will self-insure by increasing the interest rate and points for the loan (and margin and life cap if an adjustable rate mortgage) up to 90 percent loan to value.

If you are going for a first-time homebuyer or any loan with less than 10 percent down payment, be prepared to be saddled with an up front cost of approximately .95 percent of the loan amount and an ongoing monthly payment anywhere from .66 to .80 percent of the loan amount (divided by 12). You will have to pay that until you can prove that your loan is below 80 percent loan to value.

Escrow Fee. In every real estate transaction, escrow serves as the non-biased (and often the peace maker) third party to the transaction. Your escrow officer is the conduit between lender, real estate agent and/or mortgage broker and you. The fee is based on the loan amount if a refinance and the sales price if a purchase. Fees range anywhere from $290 to $930 (for loans to $1 million dollars — loans over $1 million dollars are usually by special quotation only which the client agrees to in writing).

Title Insurance. This is one of the biggies. If you are purchasing, you will need an owner's policy as well as a lender's policy (if you are financing the property). The owner's policy is based on the purchase price. The lender's policy is on the loan amount. The combined policy ranges from $600 to $2,000. Why do you need title insurance? The litigation costs involved when someone disputes your claim to ownership, would be 10, maybe 20 times the cost of insurance.

Recording Tax Service. Drawing and Notary Fees (I usually throw in an additional $100 for anything I might have missed.) The county records the deed of trust for about $72. The state sets up communication between your lender and them to make sure you pay your taxes in a timely manner—or the state tatties. For that you pay another $69. Usually escrow charges to prepare the documents before you sign them and there are notary fees for each borrower's signature.

Pay Off and Demand Fees. Refinances Only — When your old loan is paid off, your old lender will charge you anywhere from $100 to $200 to give this information to the escrow company. They will report your principal balance plus any accrued interest due. The formula that we use is the principal balance plus one payment plus $100.

Take heart, the above are the non-recurring costs. They only happen one time, at the close of escrow. Most of the fees represent your "finance charge and your APR (annual percentage rate) You should be advised by a competent accountant or tax person as to how they affect your tax return. Of course, if you have elected to go to a no-cost loan or if you are fortunate enough to have a seller who is paying your non-recurring closing costs, you need not concern yourself with the tax benefit of the non-recurring closing costs. However, you will probably be paying a higher interest rate which has its own tax advantages.

Recurring Closing Costs

Prepaid Interest. The day of the month you close will determine how many days of interest are due on your new loan. When you make your mortgage payment, you are paying in arrears for the previous month. So, if you closed your purchase or refinance on June 5 your first payment would be due Aug. 1. That payment covers the interest and principal due for July.

There would be 25 days of prepaid interest due for the remainder of June. (There are 360 days in a banker's year and 30 days in every month.)

Tax Pro-rations. (purchases only) The tax fiscal year runs from July 1 through June 30. The seller of the property is responsible to pay through the day the property closes escrow. The buyer pays the balance of the fiscal year's taxes owed. So, the buyer could pay from one day to 12 months of taxes depending on the time of the year it closes. During a refinance, if you close escrow within 60 days of when either your first or second installment is due, the state requires that you pay that tax installment through escrow.

Fire Insurance. When purchasing, the lender requires a policy for one full year paid in advance through escrow. For qualification purposes we use a factor of .325 percent of the loan amount. You may buy more insurance, but this is the minimum the lender requires. When refinancing, most lenders require at least 6 months remain of the term of your policy or they require that the policy be re-written for a year from the date of close and paid for through escrow.

Impound Accounts. When the loan amount exceeds 80 percent of the value in the property, most lenders require that you pay your taxes and fire insurance with your monthly payment. This is above and beyond taxes and insurance they have already collected from you. They will usually collect two to three months payments to set up these escrow accounts.

Recurring closing costs may not be paid by the seller or the mortgage lender through rebate pricing. So, when someone tells you that they can get you a no cost loan, they are considering only the non-recurring closing costs of the loan.

Enjoy breakfast at OAR

BY BOBBIE REID
CORRESPONDENT

"Home Office Fever" is hitting Oakland's real estate community. Agents experience loss of networking, a need to market their properties in a new way and the feeling of being left out of the loop on current information.

What's the cure? Attend the all-new Oakland Association of Realtors "Tour Day Breakfast." Remember OAR's old marketing meeting?

Remember all the real estate sales that resulted from those meetings? Agents brought enough listing flyers to share.

Through networking, agents were able to get to know those in the industry they would be doing business with. It was a win, win, win situation— a win for both the listing agent and buyers' agent, a win for the home seller because their property received additional exposure. What a great listing tool.

The new "Tour Day Breakfast" has all the pluses of the old meeting and more. The meeting is fast-paced, with a buffet breakfast to get you on track, before the tour.

Aidee Martin Jerome of Fidelity National Title and Ingrid Westgard of North American Title co-host this monthly event, held on the fourth Thursday of every month.

next "Tour Day Breakfast" is at 8:45 a.m., next Thursday. OAR's Auditorium on Webster Street, in Oakland is the location. The featured speaker is Shannon Jones, Attorney and the author of A Real Estate Agents' Practical Guide To Avoiding Litigation. Jones will discuss current legal issues.

Agents are encouraged to bring marketing flyers and an appetite. Tour Day sheets are provided.

For further information about Tour Day call Ingrid Westgard at 510-339-2380.

Nick's graduation brings back memories

TARPOFF AND TALBERT
True Experiences

Number 398 in a series of true experiences in real estate

It's a funny thing about nostalgia: you never know when it will hit you or what might trigger it. This week, for me, I got all misty about a building, a large building.

We knew that the Kaiser Convention Center near one end of the lake in Oakland was where graduation for Skyline High was to be held. I said several times beforehand that when I was a kid we called that building The Auditorium, and that's where we went to the circus. All I got in response were polite "Oh." The building wasn't the big thing for my family. It was my son Nick's graduation, his ascent into life after high school.

On the appointed evening, we parked in the parking lot where we could look over to the lake on one side and see the broad face of the auditorium on the other. It's a beautiful building, strong and proud. It looks enduring. There are many entrances along the front, double doors recessed into arched alcoves with stairs going up to them.

"That's where the man stood selling paper birds on a stick," I announced as we got out of the car. "Oh, and chameleons, the ones with little gold chains around their necks." I could see it, the scene as it was when I was 6 or 8 years old, the vendors standing at the foot of each set of stairs holding bunches of little paper birds on round wooden sticks. They had real feathers for wings and their beaks were painted, I think, cerise.

And the chameleons. It sounds terrible to me now, having a little live thing on a necklace leash, but at the time, my sister and I were enchanted. My mother actually bought one for us, very surprising, they must have been expensive. The man had a lot of them, their chain collars pinned with small safety pins to a cloth, and he unpinned one so my mother could attach it to my coat lapel, not too high, low enough for me to see when his skin turned color.

"They changed the doors," I said, noticing as we walked along the building that the double doors are aluminum. "They must have been wooden when the building was built. Too bad they changed them. Why did they do that?"

Anet gently humored me, saying wood rots and can be vandalized, and maybe the doors were in poor shape and someone decided metal would be better.

I said that our chameleon probably didn't live long, poor thing, I really couldn't remember. I only know what I can still see, the crowd of people, lots of children (we were all dressed up for the circus), Moms being asked to buy souvenirs, the little green lizard on my coat, my sister saying (I'm sure) that it was her turn now. And twirling those whirly birds. As soon as you were away from the crowd (you might put someone's eye out), you could twirl it round and round over your head, and it would sing, twitter, paper-like, fine.

We entered, not through the aluminum doors but, along with a large and happy crowd, through one end of the building, up some concrete stairs, then walked, side by side, up a spiraling concrete ramp. "Oh, I remember the ramp!" I said. I had forgotten. I must not have been on this ramp since the circus 50 years ago, and now I was back, and remembering it most keenly.

There are many doors from the hall at the top of the ramp that lead into the upper reaches of the auditorium. We entered one then, and there was the floor of the auditorium a story below us, the wooden floor golden yellow. All around us were rows and rows of bolted-down fold-up seats that continue up steep stairways to the dark corners of the roof. Floors and aisles are thick gray concrete, and there are concrete stiles you have to climb up, then down on the other side.

It was noisy, there was a lot of movement, and when we climbed the stiles, we had to pause to let other people go past us. We were looking for seats in which to settle, searching above and below the pathway, and as we went along, men and women with babies in carriers swung them out of the way, little children stepped high up the stairs and older people with canes watched their footing carefully. Carried along with the crowd were bunches of balloons and bouquets of flowers.

I looked over the arena to the "really good seats" ringside and up to the metal work in the ceiling, and I was there as I had been, the orchestra playing, the ringmaster booming. Colors, bright costumes and feathers, clowns – an impossible quantity – squeezing out of a little car, and bringing with them — a baby pig! Trapezes hitched to the beams, acrobats swinging, falling and bouncing onto the safety net. Elephants, huge elephants, plodding in from the side door, nodding their trunks, lifting their heavy feet onto painted red and white wooden stands.

The circus food vendors traversed the steep concrete stairs with sure steps, calling out "Popcorn, candy, soda," stopping to pass their goods along to customers, hand to hand. They didn't stumble, they knew the route, went up and down and over. It was marvelous. I realized how closely I watched them long ago, wondered as I thought about them again how they came to be so adept, so surefooted, how they happened to have that job in the first place.

The graduates were coming in, some skipping, waving arms, looking for their people in the upper stands, two at a time, some holding hands. There was shouting and cheering, pointing and calling and waves. We saw Nick and we clapped and whistled, too.

Then everyone stood for the Pledge of Allegiance. Crowds, still in the aisles, stopped moving for the moment, everyone with his hand over his heart, and we all said the Pledge, still remembered, automatically pronounced, and tears came to my eyes.

■ Four Berkeley Offices to merge into one mega-office

PRUDENTIAL CALIFORNIA REALTY

The consolidation of four Prudential California Realty's Berkeley-area offices will set the stage for the company to substantially increase its market share in the East Bay's housing market.

At the end of July, more than 80 agents will gather under one roof at the new Prudential Berkeley 11,000-square-feet mega-office, located at 2095 Rose Ave., off Shattuck Avenue. The consolidation plan unites Berkeley's Telegraph Avenue, North Berkeley, Kensington, and Albany offices.

MORRIS AND JAMES CAREY
TRIBUNE AP WEEKLY FEATURES

Betty asks: Our home is 40 old. In my bedroom bath we ve a four-way lamppost light fix- e that holds four 60-watt bulbs. I ten blow-drying my hair using a ndheld dryer and I heard a pop. ere was smoke in the bath cut off sharply ow nothing comes on and the ath seems looser. No other rt of the house was affected. Do you tell me what happened at can we do?

Bills can only assume what ppened. It sounds like you over- ded the circuit in your bathroom. ur handheld dryer and the lamppost e plugged into the same re- t, chances are you blew a ircuit-breaker or a fuse.

If you have checked the fuse box and found that all is OK, start ok for the GFI breaker that con- ols the circuit for your bathroom. GFI receptacle contains its own ker system (two plugs with two ons in the center). One button sets the circuit and the other resets e. The GFI breaker isn't always in the room where everything goes off. Sometimes it's located in a differ- ent bathroom or in the garage.

If you're unsure of what a GFI breaker looks like, go to a hardware store and ask to be shown one. Consider adding it in your own home for easier.

From now on, leave the lights off when you are drying your hair. Better yet, get four compact fluores- cents to reduce the 240 watts cur- rently being used by your pole lamp to 60 watts. You'll have the same amount of light as before, but you will be using 75 percent less energy.

Improving your home? Truitt & White offers free seminars

Today's new construction products are designed for quality living. At this seminar at Truitt & White Lumber, you will learn about insulated, lowE windows, formaldehyde-free insulation, and many more products that are safe, healthy, and environmentally-friendly.

David Johnston, president of What's Working and an international expert on green building will present this information-packed seminar. We urge you to come by early and tour the Resourceful-Ness Showcase, a 28-foot long trailer that displays innovative "green" building products. This seminar will take place tomorrow from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Marvin replacement window clinic. Back by popular demand, this clinic will offer homeowners and contractors the opportunity to learn about the advantages of replacement windows, tips and techniques for installations, and the many options available.

Marvin professionals will demonstrate how to measure for replacement windows and present an overview of the numerous Marvin Window products. The seminar is scheduled for Saturday, June 29 from 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Both seminars are free, but reservations are required. Call 510-649-2674 to reserve your space. Both will be held at 642 Hearst Ave. in Berkeley. Refreshments will be served.

Buying New Construction Before Completion

Yes! Buying a house under construction can be a satisfying experience. By adding your personal touches and finishes, you will make the new house your own home. Many builders will welcome a contract on their home before they complete the house. It's a win-win situation both for the contractor and the buyer. However, you need to know what you're doing or else you can get short changed.

I have 25 years of experience as Real Estate Broker and a builder of custom homes in the Oakland Hills.

You're getting more than just a Real Estate Broker when you work with Mel.

If you're looking for new construction, give me a call. I can help you!

Builders call if you want to sell your home before it's completed.

Ask about my New Construction + Vacant Lots Listings. Call Mel Copland.

Expect the Bay Oaks to take the field well prepared.

The Bay Oaks' approach might shock some other teams. Practices have a loose and friendly atmosphere. And everyone on the field exudes happiness.

For many fans, soccer is more than just a sport.

Spanish-language broadcasters call it un espectaculo, a spectacular show where the players show off their skills in a match that — at its best — moves from end to end and flows gracefully in both directions.

For those who are deep into soccer history, the offensive domination shown by the Bay Oaks Soccer Club under-13 girls team this season (63 wins, six draws and 59 shutouts in 72 matches) might bring to mind stories of Hungary's Magic Magyars of the

OAKLAND STROKES

THE OAKLAND STROKES girls varsity eight team capped a superb season by reaching the grand final at the National Youth Invitational Races in Cincinnati.

Strokes finish season with flourish

■ Oakland's girls varsity eight team places fifth and sixth in national races

STAFF REPORT

The little boats making the big noise in West Coast crew racing circles sounded off again June 8-9.

Competing at the National Youth Invitational Races at Cincinnati's Lake Horsha, the Oakland Strokes girls varsity eight placed fifth and sixth in their respective races. In placing two varsity boats in the national finals after winning the Pacific Southwest Regionals at Lake Natoma in May, the Oakland Strokes girls crew team completed one of its most successful seasons ever and gave rise to hopes of a strong future.

Twelve boats, the first- and second-place finishers in each of the six regions, are invited to the national finals for two days of heart-stopping competitive rowing. The winners of the two heats on Saturday morning placed two boats in the grand final.

The remaining boats compete for final qualification in additional repechage races, in which runners-up get a second shot at the finals, in the afternoon. Six boats race in the grand finale.

The Strokes' varsity eight advanced to the final by taking second place in one of the two afternoon repechages, beating Saratoga, N.Y., by just one second (or about a third of a boat-length). In this race the varsity eight girls set a record time for their boat: 6 minutes, 47.90 seconds.

In the grand finale, Cincinnati Rowing won its fourth consecutive title, edging out St. Paul's (N.H.) by four-tenths of a second in a time of 6:28.00. In an astonishingly close race for third, three boats finished with 2.3 seconds of each other with Holy Names Academy of Seattle (6:35.60) and Community Rowing of Boston (6:36.90) just touching out Oakland (6:37.90).

Everett, a team from Washington that had beaten the Strokes at the Windemere Cup in April, finished sixth this weekend, 4.5 seconds behind Oakland.

Despite slicing 10 seconds off their best time the day before, the Strokes were thrown off their stride after Community, rowing in the next lane, caught a crab (an oar flipped the wrong way and got caught in the water) and collided with the Strokes boat after drifting into the Oakland lane.

One measure of the Strokes' intensity in this race was evident in their stroke rate. In the past, the varsity eight was accustomed to racing at 35 strokes per minute and sprinting at 38. In the final they opened at a stroke rate of 42, settled to a 37 and then sprinted at a 40.

"At that level of competition, there is no room for anything but a personal best, and these girls delivered," Strokes head coach Derek Byrnes said. "We were clearly the smallest boat of any here. One coach, whose crew we subsequently beat, observed that we were 'sure small.'"

Byrnes' response was a succinct "So?"

To avoid an overlap in racing among the two boats, the California State silver medal-winning lightweight eight boat needed to replace four of its nine members less than a month before nationals. Luckily, the Strokes didn't have far to look to come up with amazing alternates, picking up JV cox Beth Kruse, third varsity boat stroke Paige McCune and two stalwarts from coach Beth Anderson's undefeated novice squad.

"While this isn't entirely the team that earned the initial invitation, they certainly won their way into the finals nonetheless. We were all so excited," Anderson said.

Said assistant coach Liz Anglin: "It is amazing we could put together essentially a new boat after subtracting the varsity eight members (Elissa Malmquist, Meredith Coleman and Alana Kopke) just one month ago and still make the national final. That says something about our rowers."

In their Saturday afternoon heat to earn their way into the final, the lightweights found themselves two spots out of the money with just 800 meters to go. Digging deep, they steamed past both Dublin (Ohio) and Community's boat to finish with a time of 7:02.40, four seconds better than their rivals. In the final on Sunday, they placed sixth, and "sixth best in the country isn't too shabby," Byrnes said.

It was interesting to note that in the grand finals, three of the final six varsity eights and four of the lightweights were West Coast boats, testifying to the strength of the region.

OAKLAND STROKES

THE STROKES' varsity eight set a record time for their boat in the national preliminaries, then bettered the time by 10 seconds in the final.

Berkeley earns a bronze medal

STAFF REPORT

Yoshi Katsuura and Jordan Bice of the Berkeley High School crew team won a bronze medal in the boys' doubles at the United States Rowing Youth Invitational on June 8-9 at Lake Horsha in Cincinnati.

This is the first time in Berkeley crew history that members have won a medal at this event.

Katsuura and Bice are ranked as the third quickest scullers in the nation. Katsuura picked up a silver medal at the Southwest Junior Regional Championship, held May 11 at Lake Natoma.

Reds do it again to seize title

By Scott Strain
STAFF WRITER

BERKELEY — Reds coach Al Carrasco came up to a reporter on June 12 and asked, "What did I say to you Saturday? What did I say about defense?"

"We've beaten them twice during the regular season. But they've been good games. They can hit the ball.

"The key to the Reds is: Are we going to play good defense?"

That was on June 8, and Carrasco was talking about the Rockies. On June 12, everything he said came true. His team did play good defense and the Reds did beat the Rockies again, this time 9-3 for the North Oakland/South Oakland Little League Senior American championship at Willard Middle School.

The pesky Rockies hung around for four innings before the Reds hit them with a six-spot in the fifth to pull away from a 3-2 game. And the defense was there, too, with good plays made in the field and only a harmless error committed when the game was already decided.

Berkeley resident Lucas Fogerty pitched a five-hitter, which was made easier because he was pitching on his home field. The De La Salle High School-bound pitcher struck out nine and walked five. He gave up just one hit in the first three innings — an infield single to Nikko Wahl in the first.

ALBANY — In an era when home runs and high-scoring games are commonplace in the major leagues, summer youth baseball offers an enticing alternative. The youth teams might score fewer runs, but they generally highlight the less-appreciated aspects of baseball very well.

The Albany-Berkeley Lions and Oakland Oaks 18-under teams did a lot of the latter in Babe Ruth League action Tuesday at Cougar Field. At game's end, it was the Oaks who walked away with a tidy 2-1 victory.

"We've got some great defense and we've got some great pitching, but most importantly we were executing," said Oaks manager Mobil Cox. "Today, we won a 2-1 ballgame. To win a 2-1 ballgame, you've got to play some good defense and have some good pitching."

The Oaks (9-5) received a strong pitching performance from lefty Cory Dunlap, who graduated from Encinal High School this month. Fellow Encinal grad Nick Loy, the Alameda Contra Costa Athletic League MVP, had a strong game with the glove at shortstop.

The Oaks also boasted three Berkeley High players in their lineup — Matt Toma at catcher, DeAndre Miller at third base and Andre Sternberg in center field.

As the score indicates, the Lions (8-4) played a fine game, too. Perhaps another hit or two — and surely one fewer error — might have meant a win. Overall, though, the Lions played a good all-around game.

Albany-Berkeley, like the Oaks, is a strong team with many quality players. The Lions have 1950s or of Brazil in the Pelé period (1958-70). Fans of the present generation might parallel it to the offensive fireworks currently taking place at the World Cup in South Korea and Japan.

Bay Oaks coach Noel Gallo puts another spin on it.

"We have a little Oakland Raiders in us," he says. "A lot of teams just try to play possession, but we come at you. We do a lot of give-and-go. We just try to score and have fun."

All-out attacking play carries an element of risk, as teams sometimes can get burned in the back. The latter scenario has rarely happened to the Bay Oaks this season, as they have yielded just 17 goals.

Gallo not only has a talented, dedicated group of players, but one of the most diverse in the state. Most important, he has an astute group of seventh- and eighth-graders.

"Four-point-oh, 4.0, 4.0," he says, motioning to various players. "Half of these girls speak Spanish, one speaks French and another speaks German. These girls are very bright."

Most of the players have specific positions that they play most of the time. But Gallo sometimes will shake things up by moving players into different positions or at least casting them in different roles (attacking from the back, for instance).

Gallo's tactical moves only enhance the full soccer experience enjoyed by his players.

"We don't keep score of who has a goal," he says. "We have a lot of defenders, for instance, who score goals."

As with any team, the players ultimately have to get the job done on the field. Fellow parents, though, credit Gallo with fostering a positive attitude.

"Noel is special, too," says team statistician Gordon Olson. "He just gives, gives, gives. There's been times when he taken five kids in his car. He never says, 'I,' it's all about the kids. It's really refreshing."

Perhaps the magic of the 2001-02 season will continue next week at the U.S. Youth Soccer Association Region IV playoffs in West Jordan, Utah. Regardless, the Bay Oaks already have enjoyed un espectaculo of a season — both on and off the pitch.

Bay Oaks face tough challenge

The Bay Oaks under-13 girls soccer team will play in Flight D against the state champions of Nevada, New Mexico and Arizona in the U.S. Youth Soccer Region IV playoffs in West Jordan, Utah.

After its opening game against the NFC Tabagators 89A of Las Vegas on June 24, the Bay Oaks will take on the Jornada Sharks of Las Cruces, N.M., on June 25, and the South Bank Lady Bugs of Tempe, Ariz., on June 26. For those going with the team, the starting times are 8 a.m., 9:30 a.m., and 11 a.m., MDT, respectively.

The Bay Oaks expect a strong challenge from the Jornada Sharks in the opening round.

After the first round, the top two finishers in each flight will advance to the quarterfinals on June 27. Should the Bay Oaks advance, the under-13 girls will play the first or second team from Flight A, which includes CYSA-South champion WCSC Premier of Santa Ana, ranked first in Southern California and second nationally in the girls 13 age group.

Other teams in Flight A are state champions Southside Devastation of Tigard and Tualatin, Ore., and Les Boise United of Idaho, and Washington state runners-up HSA Eagles 88 Blue of Seattle.

The semifinals are June 28, with the champ[illegible]

Albany's Joy Kim took the 7-11 girls bracket with a two-day 18-hole total of 79, topping Nicole Lata of Milpitas by 10 strokes.

On Tuesday, she birdied the eighth hole.

Placerville's Kimberly McCready won the girls 15-17 division, shooting a 2-over par 144 (72-72).

Wahl, the starting pitcher for the Rockies, pretty much muffled the potent Reds hitters through the first four innings. The Reds did score three runs in the second, but they had some help.

Kenny Pickett led off with an infield single and Tim Mack walked. Kieran Craigie hit a slow roller back to Wohl, who threw to third for the force on Pickett. Rockies third baseman Andres Gopnik-Lewinski, another Berkeley resident, alertly fired to first to nip Craigie for a rather rare 1-5-3 double play. Jon Carrasco was hit by a pitch, and Kevin Ruma was safe on an outfield error that scored Mack. Fogerty then had the big hit of the inning, a two-run double to right-center field.

After fanning five in the first three innings, Fogerty ran into control problems in the fourth. Joe Castro and Wohl drew walks to lead off the inning and Gopnik-Lewinski popped a single to center to load the bases.

Greg Lorentzen hit a sharp grounder to Carrasco at second, who tagged Gopnik-Lewinski and threw to first to retire Lorentzen for a double play. Castro scored. Ian Flanagan walked, but Fogerty picked him off for the third out of the inning.

It was the Rockies' biggest chance to get back into the game and the Reds cut them off. The Rockies did manage a run in the fifth when Henry McAlpine doubled and came around on a single by Berkeley resident Daniel Austin for 3-2.

But then the Reds bats awoke and hammered out six hits and the team scored six runs to blow the game open. Pickett and Bobby Thompson singled and Craigie walked to load the bases with one out. Carrasco blasted a double over the left-fielder's head that scored Pickett and Thompson and sent Craigie to third. Ruma grounded a single to center that scored both Craigie and Carrasco for 7-2.

has won 63 of 72 matches. Of those 63 wins, 59 have been shutouts. Yes, that's right — 59 shutouts in 72 matches.

Remarkable.

Currently, the team's overall record stands at 63-3-6 with first-place finishes in 13 of 16 tournaments. Of the remaining three tournaments, the Bay Oaks finished second in two and third in another. Overall, the team has given up just 17 goals all season and is ranked fourth in the nation among all USYSA-affiliated teams in its age group.

Again, the Bay Oaks' on-field and off-field experiences complement each other.

"It's not all about soccer," says team manager Dana Wren. "It's about life lessons. These girls don't mind coming to practice. They understand the value of hard work."

"What makes this team unique," Gallo says, "is the complete participation of the parents."

Perhaps the Bay Oaks don't have a conventional approach to soccer. The team has no paid trainers. This is an all-volunteer effort.

Gallo, Wren and assistant coaches Alberto Jasso and Jorge Cisneros are all team parents. And the players themselves are not your usual — perhaps stereotypical — youth soccer fare.

"This team is one of the most eclectic teams in Northern California," Wren says. "Most teams are blondes with pony tails. We have a little bit of everything. We laugh about it."

"The diversity of this group is a classic Oakland representation in terms of ethnic backgrounds and economic backgrounds," says club commissioner John McManis. "This is not your Danville upper-class team."

On the soccer pitch, though, the Bay Oaks are the class of their age group in Northern California. After a most impressive preleague and league season, the Bay Oaks simply rolled through the California Youth Soccer Association-North State Cup playoffs. In seven State Cup matches, the Bay Oaks outscored opponents 33-0.

"Last year, we lost in the first round of the State Cup playoffs and the girls vowed not to let it happen again," Gallo says. "They made a commitment."

The players did not stand alone in their dedication.

"All year, (the parents) also made a commitment to help make the girls successful," Gallo says. "I enjoy being around the parents."

These commitments paid off. The Bay Oaks opened State Cup play Jan. 19 with a most emphatic 14-0 win over Clovis CSC Gold. The following day, the Bay Oaks completed first-round group play with identical 4-0 wins against the El Dorado Strikers and Fresno's Bullard Spirit.

From there, the Bay Oaks went on to the round of 16, where they beat Manteca Rangers 5-0 on Feb. 2. Identical 1-0 wins followed on Feb. 23-24 against the Bullard Magic of Fresno and the San Ramon Valley's Mustang Blast in the quarterfinals and semifinals, respectively.

The Bay Oaks completed their State Cup run in high fashion by beating the Pleasanton Rage 4-0 for the title in Clovis on March 2. Kate Berry-Millett tucked the first goal in at the left post. Erika Wesley then scored the next three goals, with Iman Bearde assisting on two.

Whatever this group has accomplished, though, has been through total team effort.

"Nobody talks about who scored the goals," Gallo says. "With any sport, what makes a team special is teamwork. You have girls here who like being with each other, who support each other."

At West Jordan, the Bay Oaks will face three other state championship teams in first-round group play. Officially, the Region IV playoffs start June 23. The Bay Oaks will take the field for their first match bright and early (8 a.m., Mountain time) on June 24 against the NFC Tabagators 89A of Las Vegas.

Gallo, Jasso, Cisneros, the players and three of the mothers will leave for Utah this week to get a jump-start on the tournament. These few extra days will be valuable as the team adjusts to the altitude, weather and even the one-hour time-zone change. Once everyone settles in, the Bay Oaks will take a business-as-usual approach.

"In Utah, we're staying in a condominium complex and are all sharing units," Wren says.

a bloc of St. Mary's High players — Chase Moore (drafted earlier this month by the Pittsburgh Pirates), Tom Carman, Joe Storno and Chris Morocco. Also on the team are Berkeley High's Jeremy Lebeau and Benny Goldenberg.

"I've got a good pitching staff and I have one of the best defensive infields and outfields in the area," said Lions manager Joe Pinguelo. "We're missing a couple ballplayers right now, but (Monday night) we beat (Alameda) Merchants 9-7 after coming back from a 7-3 deficit. (On Saturday), we played against the (San Leandro) Rangers state championship team and beat them 3-2. We're one of the top teams in the Bay Area."

Oakland opened the scoring with a run in the top of the second inning as Jon Gutierrez (Leland High School-San Jose) got hit by a pitch and eventually came home on a double steal.

For the most part, though, the game was a pitchers' duel. Lions batters struggled to get anything going against Dunlap, and the Oaks were just as baffled by Lions righty Randy Renn (Salesian).

A leadoff single by Loy failed to produce anything for the Oaks in the top of the third. A leadoff walk to Renn was just as unproductive for the Lions in the bottom of the inning.

The Oaks also failed to score after loading the bases in the top of the fourth.

Dunlap coasted along until the bottom of the sixth when Derek Yow (Salesian) led off with a home run over the fence in left-center field. At 1-1, extra innings appeared imminent. The Oaks had other ideas.

Daniel Walker (Skyline High) got things started in the seventh with a leadoff double to the fence in right field. Loy hit into a fielder's choice to erase Walker but moved to second during the rundown.

After Miller flied out, Loy went to third on a balk and came home when Cesar Leyva (Oakland Tech) reached on an error.

The Lions, to their credit, kept playing tough through the bitter end. Two were out in the bottom of the seventh when Renn singled to center field and Ricky Arias sent a base hit over Loy's outstretched glove at shortstop to put runners at first and second.

Lions hopes momentarily rose higher when Yow followed with a sharp grounder to the right side of the infield. Second baseman Leyva made the play, however, gloving the ball and throwing to first for the last out.

Spielberg gets an 'A' for 'Minority Report'

By Mary F. Pols
TIMES STAFF WRITER

It was born from a short story by sci-fi writer Philip K. Dick first published in 1956, and as such, it sings a note of Big Brother oppression, of a culture reduced to consumerism by the year 2054. But inside "Minority Report's" cloak of futuristic darkness beats the heart of director Steven Spielberg: tender, fatherly, optimistic and humane.

Is it a great or important movie? Not in the long run. But "Minority Report" is plenty good enough for right now: It's an engaging story steered by Spielberg's thoughtful hand, painted, sometimes for worse, but mostly for better, with a daring visual sense that demands to be noticed. It's a festival of cool, from its virtual this and virtual that to its black-clad, angst-ridden hero (Tom Cruise).

In the year 2054, the murder rate in Washington, D.C., has dropped to zero, thanks to the innovative pre-crime unit led by John Anderton (Tom Cruise) and invented by a distinguished elderly gentleman Lamar Burgess (played by Max von Sydow, one of Ingmar Bergman's favorite stars).

The unit uses a team of three "pre-cogs," soothsayers of sorts, who see murders before they happen, presenting a series of images that cops "scrub" with virtual reality gloves for clues. When Cruise "scrubs," he looks like a blend of Britney Spears and John Williams, who did Spielberg's musical score as usual. Named after famous mystery writers, the pre-cogs are kept doped up, floating in a pool inside a room called the Temple, with lots of plugs and wires attached to their heads. The female pre-cog, the liveliest fish in the pool, is named Agatha (Samantha Morton).

The story begins as American voters are considering an initiative to take pre-crime national. Because of concerns about convicting and punishing innocent people — Spielberg tips his liberal hat here, he could just as easily be talking about the death penalty — the Justice Department has sent a handsome young suit named Danny Witwer (Colin Farrell) over to pre-crime to poke around. Not long after he arrives the pre-cogs twitch and groan and unleash a fresh crime report fingering Anderton as the district's next murderer. From there, the story is off and running, with our hero doomed to run around a futuristic world fighting a certain fate.

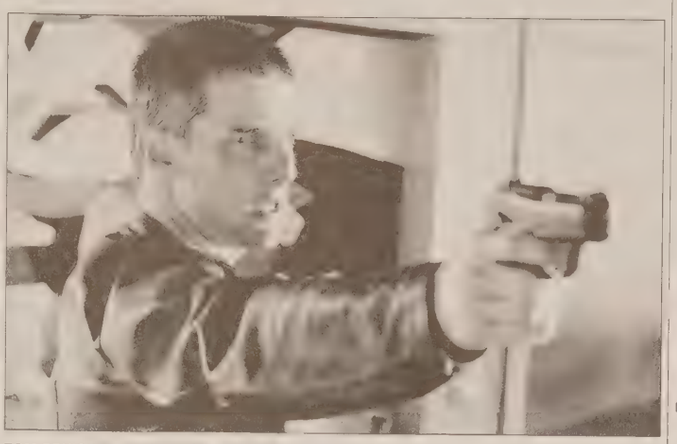

Structurally, "Minority Report" isn't far afield from "The Fifth Element" or "Twelve Monkeys." But this is a Spielberg movie, and because of that, "Minority Report" is filled with visual delights you won't see anywhere else, masterly visions that bear the mark of a man who has access to the best cinematographers, effects masters, set designers, etc. Some of the exteriors, involving crowded highways, or hovering aircraft modeled after conch shells, look fake; but everything else, from a cereal box that dances and sings to a high-rise apartment with the ultimate in executive parking, looks fantastic.

I was particularly fond of the "spiders," the tool the pre-crime unit uses to identify citizens by scanning their eyes. Unleashed into a raunchy apartment building where Anderton is taking refuge, these progeny of Big Brother roam about on skinny legs, slipping under doorways, going under floorboards. They're insidious and persistent.

It's telling of Spielberg's style that there's also something cute about the spiders; he can't resist making them strangely likable. There's a great moment where Anderton thinks he's eluded them, and then the tiniest sound and motion, just a bubble reaching the surface in a bathtub, catches the attention of one on its way out the door. It pauses and turns a little to listen. The scene gets a laugh from the audience, not so much because it's funny, but because it's just so damn nifty.

At the same time, Spielberg, not a director one typically associates with grit, dips into

Comedy to close Aurora's season

JACK TUCKER
Community Theater

AURORA THEATRE COMPANY has filled the final slot in its 2002-03 season with the West Coast premiere of Michael Frayn's "Alarms and Excursions."

Set to run Nov. 15 through Dec. 22, it's a surefire bet that hoary-bearded old Naught-two — for theatergoers, at least — will exit laughing.

This new comedy by the author of the hilarious backstage romp "Noises Off" consists of eight short playlets held together by the narrative link of modern technology. And those two words, "modern technology," are exceeded in potential to induce human vexation only by that sudden alert: "an error has occurred."

Fortunately, the torment is only play-suffering on stage. You can sit back and guffaw at what science has wrought in the guise of making things easier — ha-ha — for us!

"Alarms and Excursions" completes a double helping of Frayn this year at the Aurora. The theatre company closes its current (10th) season with the playwright's Olivier Award-winning play, "Benefactors," playing July 18 through Aug. 18.

The long-running Broadway and London hit follows two neighboring couples, one happy and successful; the other, angry and isolated, over the course of two years of tensions and tribulations, often hilarious; sometimes poignant. Joy Carlin directs a cast that includes Ron Campbell, Nancy Carlin, David Arrow and Araxi Dijan.

Aurora's previously announced lineup includes "The Shape of Things" by Neil LaBute, directed by Tom Ross (Sept. 13-Oct. 20); "The Chairs" by Eugene Ionesco, directed by Cliff Mayotte (Jan. 31-March 9, 2003); "Partition" by Ira Hauptman, directed by Barbara Oliver (April 11-May 18, 2003), and Emile Zola's own theatrical adaptation of his novel, "Therese Raquin," translated by Pip Broughton, directed by Tom Ross (June 20-July 27, 2003).

'CARNIVAL' AT ALTARENA: "Carnival," the 1961 musical theater version of the enchanting 1953 blockbuster movie, "Lili," continues its weekend run at Altarena Playhouse, 1409 High St., Alameda, through June 29.

Lili, a French orphan played by Joanna Fouts, attaches herself to a carnival and a self-pitying puppeteer (Eric Howe), seeking a home and true love.

Here are a couple of tidbits about the musical for all you theater-history buffs. Broadway producer David Merrick and librettist Michael Stewart discarded the entire Oscar-winning film score — but kept the story intact — and started from scratch with composer Bob Merrill.

The new score left choreographer Gower Champion in the peculiar position of having to give his Lili (Leslie Caron) virtually no dancing, although Caron's dancing had been one of the highlights of the film. When the stage version reached Broadway, the star was not a dancer, but a singer, Anna Marie Alberghetti.

Another innovation of the original Broadway musical should make Altarena audiences feel right at home in this cozy in-the-round venue. In the New York production no curtain was used and the performers used the aisles for entrances and exits, sometimes even for parts of the show.

"Carnival," directed by Randal Metz, with musical direction by David Howitt, plays at 8

NOW PLAYING

Below are capsule reviews of movies playing at area theaters. The reviewers are Pat Craig and Mary F. Pols, Times; Robert W. Butler, Knight Ridder Newspapers; Glenn Lovell, San Jose Mercury News; Anthony Breznican, David Germain, Christy Lemire, Tim Molloy, Sheila Norman-Culp and Matt Wolf, Associated Press; Jan Stuart, Newsday; Stephen Holden, Dave Kehr, Elvis Mitchell, A.O. Scott and Lawrence Van Gelder, New York Times; Valerie Kuklenski, Bob Strauss and Glenn Whipp, Los Angeles Daily News; Kevin Thomas and Kenneth Turan, Los Angeles Times; Gary Dowell, Tom Maurstad, Chris Vognar and Philip Wuntch, Dallas Morning News; and Roger Moore, Orlando Sentinel.

"ABOUT A BOY": A charming adaptation of Nick Hornby's wonderful comic novel of the same name. Hugh Grant is at his best, playing, as he did in "Bridget Jones's Diary," a bounder extraordinaire, a 38-year-old commitment-phobe who does nothing but shop, play with his electronic toys and live off his songwriter father's royalties. He finds redemption, albeit grudgingly, when one of his games, a scam to date single moms backfires on him and he is forced into a friendship with a lonely, dorky 12-year-old named Marcus (Nicholas Hoult). Too much voice-over, and a rather contrived ending, but a nice night out at the movies. — M. Pols. (PG-13: brief strong language and some thematic elements.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. B+

"AMELIE": A feel-good movie in the best possible sense, a comic fable from French director Jean-Pierre Jeunet that vibrates with joy and fast-dances with life. Amelie (the relentlessly charming Audrey Tautou) is a lonely young lady who keeps a watchful eye on the rest of the world. One day she sets out to reunite a child's treasure with its long-grown owner and discovers she likes playing emotional Robin Hood. Setting out on a path to help her neighbors and the denizens of the cafe where she works, she inadvertently trips into a love affair with a guy (Mathieu Kassovitz) who might be as sweetly eccentric as she is. Every time you think the movie is getting too sticky-sweet, Jeunet throws something tart and funny in our path. — M. Pols. (R: sexual content.) 2 hours. A

"BAD COMPANY": A misguided marriage of genres, the comic fish-out-of-water story meets serious action thriller, from director Joel Schumacher. Chris Rock plays separated-at-birth twins, a streetwise hustler and a well-educated yuppie CIA operative. When the agent gets killed in the middle of a mission to keep a nuclear device from falling into the wrong hands, his boss (Anthony Hopkins) enlists the hustler to stand in for him. The CIA represented here is inconceivably inept (even in today's climate), Rock talks so fast we miss half his lines, and Hopkins looks bored. — M. Pols. (PG-13: intense scenes of action violence, some sensuality and language.) 1 hour, 51 minutes. D+

"THE CAT'S MEOW": Director Peter Bogdanovich has been in a slump, and his latest — a fictionalized account about the suspicious death of a movie producer aboard a yacht owned by newspaper mogul William Randolph Hearst — is no exception. Kirsten Dunst saves the film with her full-wattage performance as an actress who's the mistress of Hearst as well as the object of Charlie Chaplin's affections. — J. Matthews. (PG-13: sexuality, violence, drug use.) 1 hour, 50 minutes. C

"CHERISH": A quirky little movie about loneliness, set in San Francisco. Social misfit Zoe (Robin Tunney) gets carjacked, accidentally kills a cop and ends up in the electronic bracelet program while she awaits trial. She keeps busy listening to '80s hits on the radio and flirting with the deputy (Tim Blake Nelson) who comes by to make sure her bracelet is working. There are a lot of obvious influences at play here, from "Play Misty For Me" to "Run Lola Run," and some plot points that make no sense, but Tunney and director Finn Taylor keep things consistently interesting. — M. Pols. (R: language.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. C+

"CQ": In Roman Coppola's (son of Francis) directorial debut, we follow the misadventures of Paul (Jeremy Davies), a hopeless romantic living in Paris in 1969. Paul is a film director wannabe who gets his big break while working as editor on a no-budget sci-fi movie. When the director is fired, Paul is left to take over and come up with a good ending. As he worries over what to do, Paul begins fantasizing about the film's leading lady (Angela Lindvall), his dreams taking on the surreal quality of the cheesy movie he's supposed to fix. The film's inspired blend of humor, camp and reflection mark Coppola as a family member to watch. — G. Whipp. (R: some nudity, profanity.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. B

"DIVINE SECRETS OF THE YA-YA SISTERHOOD": Director Callie Khouri's adaptation is more restrained than Rebecca Wells' overwritten book, but it's still soaked in enough gushy sentimentality to give the practical-minded (and most men) hives. Playwright Sidda Wells (Sandra Bullock) feuds with her difficult, alcoholic mother Vivi (Ellen Burstyn), and mom's hard-drinking best friends, Teensy (Fionnula Flanagan), Caro (Maggie Smith) and Necie (Shirley Knight), intervene to patch things up. They give Sidda a crash course in what made Vivi who she is — including a tour of her youth, where she's played by a very fine Ashley Judd. There's some interesting material here about ambitious women trapped by marriage and motherhood, but this still feels like one long, gabby therapy session. — M. Pols. (PG-13: mature thematic elements, language and brief sensuality.) 1 hour, 56 minutes. C

"DOGTOWN AND Z-BOYS": This documentary draws a straight line between a scruffy group of outlaw Southern California surfers and skateboarders of the 1970s and the pervasive modern extreme-sports movement. Certainly the Z-Boys story is compelling, and the vintage action footage that goes along with it is really something to see. But as graceful as this group is on the board, that's how graceless they tend to be off of it. Although director and co-writer Stacy Peralta, a Z-Boy himself, has created a clever visual package, a more impartial filmmaker might have understood the need for other voices to balance against all that attitude. — K. Thomas. (PG-13: language and some drug references.) 1 hour, 30 minutes. C

"ENIGMA": Based on Robert Harris' best seller about British code-breakers during World War II, this film is likely to leave the audience feeling as puzzled as the characters are. An enigma apart from the code-breaking involves the disappearance of Claire Romilly (Saffron Burrows), the former lover and colleague of the mightily stressed Cambridge mathematician Tom Jericho (Dougray Scott), who has suffered a breakdown. Why did Claire vanish? And what important intercepts has she taken with her? Kate Winslet's character adds intrigue and romance to the plot as someone who may have access to the messages Claire may have stolen. The real enigma, though, is why is this film so dull? — M. Wolf. (R: a sex scene and language.) 1 hour, 57 minutes. D+

"ENOUGH": This Jennifer Lopez would-be thriller fails on so many different levels, it's impossible to mention them all. The acting is inept, with the best performances turn in by J.Lo's numerous tight shirts; the suspense is telegraphed so broadly that scenes designed to make you leap out of your seat make you want to run for the exit; and the plot is so incredibly stupid, you know exactly what will happen before you pop the top of your Junior Mints. There must be something to recommend this film, it's just that nothing comes to mind right now. Oh yeah, the photography is really nice. — P. Craig. (PG-13: intense domestic violence, some sensuality and language, mind-numbing stupidity.) D+

"THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST": Oscar Wilde is, as a rule, hard to screw up. Put his witty words in the mouths of even a group of high school thespians and they sound pretty fine. But director Oliver Parker, who did a decent job with Wilde's "An Ideal Husband" a few years ago, has managed to turn in such an oddly limp version of "Earnest" that it's hard to believe it's Wilde at all. The love affairs, between Cecily (Reese Witherspoon) and Algy (Rupert Everett) and Jack/Ernest (Colin Firth) and Gwendolen (Frances O'Connor), lack chemistry, so we never get emotionally invested in the story. Judi Dench has some fun moments, but even she doesn't seem up to par. And Parker's attempts to spruce the story up with some weird touches of modernity, including a trip to a tattoo parlor, fall very flat. — M. Pols. (PG: mild sensuality.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. C

"INSOMNIA": In this moody thriller from "Memento" director Christopher Nolan, Al Pacino plays a Los Angeles cop under investigation by Internal Affairs. Apparently to keep him out of trouble, his superiors ship him off to Alaska to help out with a murder mystery in Nightmute, a town right out of David Lynch. But no one reminded him to bring his sleeping pills to the Land of the Midnight Sun. As Pacino gets closer to catching the killer, he gets more and more exhausted and freaked out. Pacino is in top form (it's a no-shouting, no-spitting role for him, thankfully), and all the supporting actors, from Robin Williams in an unusually dark role to

IG FAT GREEK WEDDING": Kis Vardalos) is considered a nature in the Chicago Greek mmunity because she's still single while working at her father's ant, she waits on a guy who's nderous, he paralyzes her with mem inspires her to undergo over. Ian (John Corbett), a hool teacher, falls for her, too. Old-Country parents don't ap- of him at first; his WASPy par- treat her like she's from another et. But because both families their children to be happy, you everything will work out in the ndalos and Corbett together ple enough to make this more tolerable than the aver- omantic comedy. — C. Lemire. sensuality and language.) 1 35 minutes. C+

P ANO TEACHER": A mar- twisted movie about a dan- repressed Viennese piano sabelle Huppert) and her owship with a talented young (Benoît Magimel). He thinks ping a musically gifted Mrs. son on a voyage of discovery; they embark on a cruise to hell on the good ship lesh. Be prepared: This isn't a rench film. The acting is in- ble though, and this is one of most realistic depictions of sex- ploration ever made. — M. NR; but includes extreme s of sexuality and self-mutila- 2 hours, 10 minute. A

SCORPION KING": There are ices: You can laugh at The laugh with him as he poses, ghers and pile-drives his way a string of violent dust-ups in Egypt. The safe bet is you'll her him. Reprising his brief role ar's "The Mummy Returns," k stars as Mathayus, one of survivors of an ancient race of s. At its core, the movie is a d's street brawl, fueled by The bulking presence. He's a phys- ing specimen who manages enough drollery in his delivery to convince audiences that someone's actually home beneath all that muscle. — D. Germain. (PG-13: intense sequences of action violence and some sensuality.) 1 hour, 31 minutes. C+

"SPIDER-MAN": Not high art by any means, but still that rare thing, an event movie that leaves you feeling chipper, entertained and sated rather than ripped-off. Director Sam Raimi treats the material at hand with the loving, careful touch of someone who knows and treasures this bedtime story as much as we do, while Tobey Maguire makes such a compelling Peter Parker that it's a bit of a disappointment whenever he puts on the mask to make an appearance as Spider-Man. The bummers include product placements, the appearance of Macy Gray, hopelessly out of place, and some action sequences that bore a bit. — M. Pols. (PG-13: stylized violence and action.) 2 hours, 1 minute. B+

"SPIRIT: STALLION OF THE CIMARRON": From Flicka to Black Beauty, every great horse story must have an element of tragedy. The biggest tragedy in this animated family film is the cheesy Bryan Adams soundtrack, which really puts a damper on what is otherwise a lovely film. Spirit is a wild mustang stallion who roams the American frontier with his pack of mares, until he's captured by the Cavalry and put to work. The Adams sapfest aside, there's a lot of heart to this story, and the animators have rendered a version of the West so beautiful, your kids may be clamoring for a driving tour of our national parks this summer. — M. Pols. (G) 1 hour, 22 minutes. B

"STAR WARS— EPISODE II: ATTACK OF THE CLONES": As Yoda might say, still many questions, we have. The right questions, some of them are. Get you back to the theater for "Episode III," they will. Irritating, others are. Stand alone, "Attack of the Clones" doesn't. A better movie than "Phantom Menace," but still a far cry from its sprightly original "Star Wars" roots. Too computerized, too ponderous and too long. Anakin Skywalker (Hayden Christensen) is such a brat, you'll question what Padmé (Natalie Portman) sees in him, but romance does blossom between them. — M. Pols. (PG: sustained sequences of sci-fi action/violence.) 2 hours, 22 minutes. C+

"THE SUM OF ALL FEARS": Jack Ryan must have been exploring anti-aging creams since "Clear and Present Danger," because the Tom Clancy hero formerly played by Harrison Ford is portrayed by twentysomething Ben Affleck in this latest adaptation of one of Clancy's popular spy novels. It's the usual terrorist muck, with a misplaced nuclear warhead on the loose, the world's future in jeopardy and Jack rushing to save us all. There's a difference this time, though, in terms of disaster narrowly averted — and it may be very hard for some folks, those still caught up in the Sept. 11 mind-set, to sit back and enjoy this harrowing ride. Look for Morgan Freeman as the smooth-as-silk CIA director. — M. Pols. (PG-13: violence, disaster images and brief strong language.) 2 hours, 4 minutes. C+

"THIRTEEN CONVERSATIONS ABOUT ONE THING": More accurately, 13 tedious conversations about nothing. One of those movies, like "Magnolia," that interweaves stories about characters we know will ultimately be connected. When they work, we leave with a sense of something bigger, but this indie film from writer/director Jill Sprecher only adds up to a muted, fractured, pretentious bore. With Matthew McConaughey, John Turturro, Clea DuVall and Alan Arkin as some of the various characters enduring story lines that are meant to teach them about Life. Only Arkin shines. — M. Pols. (R: language and brief drug use.) 1 hour, 43 minutes C-

"ULTIMATE X": This 43-minute film skillfully unites the IMAX cameras with such visual spectacles as skateboarding, BMX biking, Moto-X and street luge competitions. A behind-the-scenes look at the 2001 X Games that's both fun and exciting. — P. Wuntch. (PG: intense sports action, mild language.) 43 minutes. B+

"UNDERCOVER BROTHER": In this corner, we have Michael Bolton-listening, Banana Republic-shopping WASP America. And in the other, we have Cadillac-driving, James Brown-worshiping African America. Eddie Griffin is Undercover Brother, a do-gooder with a thing for the '70s. He's recruited for a top-secret organization that fights for "truth, justice and the African American Way." This can't-miss material does — miss, that is. Director Malcolm D. Lee blows one sure-thing bit after another and fails to let, or make, his cast be funny. — R. Moore. (PG-13: language, sexual humor, drug content and campy violence.) 1 hour, 26 minutes. C-

"UNFAITHFUL": "Fatal Attraction" and "Indecent Proposal" director Adrian Lyne completes his trilogy of infidelity with this steamy bit of soft porn starring Diane Lane as a suburban housewife who strays on her staid husband (Richard Gere) with a French book dealer. Lane is fantastic, in and out of her many evocative sex scenes. But be warned: Like her, you'll pay for your pleasure in the movie's second half, a cautionary tale of reckoning. To his credit, Lyne has stayed true to "Unfaithful's" roots, a French movie called "La Femme Infidèle," and left the ending a tad ambiguous. — M. Pols. (R: sexuality, language and a scene of violence.) 2 hours, 3 minutes. B

"Y TU MAMÁ TAMBIÉN": A captivatingly truthful Mexican film about two teen-age boys and a sexy woman 10 years their senior on a road trip from Mexico City to a beautiful beach that may exist only in the boys' imaginations. Flush from their recent sexual adventures with their teen girlfriends, the boys (Diego Luna and Gael Garcia Bernal) are cocky, audacious, and sure they are ready for sex on the beach with a woman like Luisa (Maribel Verdú). Their true innocence is laid bare as the trip takes unexpected twists. The film manages to explore eroticism, class differences and the tumult of Mexico without a second of preachiness, and reminds us that just because our eyes have been opened doesn't mean we won't slam them shut again. — M. Pols. (NR: explicit sexual scenes and very strong language.) 1 hour, 45 minutes. A- seamier waters with "Mi- Report." He casts his cam- er an American cityscape cludes glimpses of sex, do- disputes and designer being peddled on dark corners. He nips away at realism (the only region of free from pulsating bill- s that recognize consumers place known as "The ," or as we might call it the place where the poor live). He pays homage to rks of truly kinky direc- various points; a pipe- woman feels like a nod d Lynch, and Anderton's a leering back alley "eye (Peter Stormare) calls ick's 'A Clockwork Orange' also plays with Cruise's perfect image. I have no idea why the character played by Lois Smith, a 71-year-old actress, kisses Cruise full on the lips, but I enjoyed the menacing oddness of it all. Ditto for the scene where Stormare's assistant Greta squeezes Anderton's behind. There's also some entertainingly distasteful business involving Anderton handling a plastic baggie filled with — oh jeez, you'll have to see it for yourself.

Cruise is solid as Anderton, who is mixed up not only because he may or may not be about to commit a murder, but because he lost a child — a son, of course; this is Spielberg — six years before, presumably to a pedophile. The loss has driven away his wife (Kathryn Morris, who was the relentlessly curious FBI agent in "The Contender") and left Anderton with a taste for a funky designer drug called "Clarity." "Minority Report" is essentially a parent's story, primarily a father's, but a subplot touches on a mother's love as well, and Cruise handles it well. This isn't one of his more exciting performances, such as, say, the one he pulled off in "Magnolia," but what's around him is exciting enough to compensate.

What's really fascinating is seeing Farrell, all melting eyes and snapping gum, go up against Cruise. He's the neo-Cruise in many respects, but saucier, and it's unusual to see Cruise have to compete with someone onscreen, since typically everyone just caves and allows him the spotlight. In this duel of manly egos, Cruise wins, of course, with the help of Spielberg and, obviously, the script, but Farrell still manages to suck some of the light away from Cruise. That he'd be so arresting is no surprise to anyone who saw him dominate last year's practically straight-to-video "Tigerland."

The film has been pitched as unusually "challenging" for the summer marketplace, with Spielberg intimating to journalists that audiences will have to pay close attention in between those action sequences. For someone who has to see a remarkable number of unchallenging movies during the summer months, this was major enticement going into the movie, a promise of a real mystery. It was somewhat disappointing then to be able to figure out who the puppetmaster is long before Anderton himself does, and even to feel, at the moment where he slaps himself on the head and says something along the lines of hey, why didn't I think of that before, that he indeed has been remiss in not connecting the dots.

W MAKEUP IN PINOLE: um members won't be the personalities" wearing tonight as Pinole Com- Players present "Guys s." The playhouse itself almost a year and a being dark — reopens at ement Ave., Pinole. It's decked out in new makeup inside and out, top to bottom. Truly, it's a renewed architectural "personality" for a theater company and its home that have always had "it" from the very beginning, years ago at St. Joseph's church.

The musical, based on stories of hijinks among New York low-lifes by Damon Runyon, is directed by Dave Clark, with musical direction by Nancy Gili and choreography by Anjee Norgaard. Bea Shelby designed the set.

Incidentally, as long as we are still on a kick, a sort of primitive "Guys and Dolls" is traced by some theatrical chroniclers to a British import on March 3, 1823. It was called "Tom and Jerry; or, Life in London." The plot, such as it was, was old even then: an innocent abroad in a land of the sharpies. The gist of the play, noted in George Odell's "Annals of the New York Stage," consisted of "rapidly shifting scenes, great diversity of city types of character, and a large amount of consequent spectacle, song and dance." Some things never change. Good!

Tickets for tonight's gala reopening are $25, including champagne, wine appetizers and a souvenir glass. After tonight, tickets are $15 general; $12 for seniors and students with ID.

"Guys and Dolls" plays at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, and 2 p.m. Sundays (June 30, July 7 and 14) through July 20. Call 510-724-3669.

should rule in this s free-market capitalism ake, especially when it to our children. Every dustrialized country in d has TV safeguards for ren," says Steyer, who ght at Oakland's Morris ementary. He remembers ree kids could name U.S. nts and presidents, but ew who Bart Simpson eral big-name rap stars – thanks to "The Other the tube.

's criticism of market ding precedence over echoed comments a k on KQED-FM's "Fo- show by noted Chinese Min ("Red Aza- Love Min ("Red Aza- ming Madame Mao.") d the end of the hour, host Michael Krasny e Shanghai-born Min, arent who survived the hina's Cultural Revo- ed us a staunch sup- the U.S. and its demo- stitutions, if there was about America she e after having lived here a few years.

Min hesitated, not wanting to seem ungrateful to her adopted country, but Krasny pressed her.

"OK," she finally said, "since you asked. I find it very sad the way the U.S. allows its children to be exposed to advertising at such a young, tender age. That kind of thing would never be permitted in China."

It's also not permitted in many countries in the West.

Steyer cites recent studies showing that kids spend an average of 17 hours a week with their parents, and 90 with "the other parent," — TV, computer games, and the Net.

"Things HAVE changed since we were kids," he said on KGO. "There was no Internet, no video games, and only three networks, not 300. Media was much more benign then, and it had a sense of social responsibility. In today's massively consolidated media universe, it's the market, not values, that are paramount."

It's not fair just to blame parents for their kids' problems in such a poisoned, huckster-run media atmosphere says Steyer, who lists the three forces that shape kids as parents, schools, and, increasingly today, the media.

"We need government leadership to get the media back under control," he says, citing the same two areas that have led to many of these problems, two things I've written about for years: The Reagan administration's FCC-directed deregulation of stations and station ownership; and Aussie tabloid king Rupert Murdoch's dismaying, relentless ascension to U.S. media power through his Fox Network. "Today's media is an oligopoly," Steyer points out quite accurately. "Five or six guys own the whole landscape."

Steyer suggests a lot more parental involvement in choosing their kids' "media diet," saying, "You wouldn't just shop for food in the candy aisle, would you?" During his KGO appearance he noted studies showing that two-thirds of kids now have a TV in their rooms. Steyer suggests removing all TV's and computers from kids' rooms to help parents more closely monitor what kids are being exposed to. These days, insightful parents have reason to be worried at least as much about unanswered advertising as they are about porn and violence.

Television is the most powerful and influential advertising vehicle ever created. What's always amazed me is how few people understand its essence.

For example, I was at a friend's house the other day. His TV was on, as were the televisions in both his boys' rooms. This guy was going on and on about how annoying telephone solicitors were, about how he even wanted "revenge" on them. I pointed out that they were only people trying to sell him something — just like those three TV's in his house that never seemed to be shut off and continuously poured out hundreds of commercial messages each day.

I told him I'd take phone solicitors over television any day — especially when young children are involved.

My own two kids have recently graduated from college. For this I am both happy and relieved. Because, thanks largely to the "other parent," being an effective parent gets tougher and tougher every year.

ALTA BATES MEDICAL CENTER

Getting Older Is Nothing To Get Depressed About

We all feel depressed from time to time, but most of us manage to move on. However, some of us, including older adults, are not always able to lift ourselves out of depression and may need to seek help.

Being depressed is not a natural part of aging, though sometimes it is attributed to the aging process. Symptoms of depression can be triggered by such events as chronic illness, the death of a loved one or partner, anniversary dates, or even medications taken in combination with one another in certain dosage levels.

Here Are Some Symptoms of Depression:

- Loss of interest and pleasure in activities which were formerly enjoyable
- Loss of appetite
- Trouble concentrating
- Feelings of worthlessness
- Suicidal thoughts
- Difficulty sleeping

Treatment Options:

- Daily community meetings and group therapy
- Exercise and relaxation groups
- Creative and expressive arts therapy
- Life skills and health education classes
- Socialization skills and activities

Volunteers

- The Volunteer Center of Alameda County seeks the following volunteers:

Hardware Technician Trainer—A non-profit agency refurbishes donated computers to families, schools, and non profit agencies. Volunteer opportunities in the area of technology and office and public contact are needed but the agency is most desperately in need of a Hardware Technician Trainer.

Hospice Patient Care Volunteer—Peninsula hospice provides support services to the dying and their families and caregivers. The hospice provides services such as physician and nursing care, bereavement counseling, physical and occupational therapy, nutritional counseling, and social work. Volunteers are needed for the thrift shop, office, and especially for patient respite care.

Bulk Mailing-Stuff, sort, and seal envelopes for this East Bay project that supports Tibetan people in their ongoing effort to resort and transmit their religious and cultural heritage. This all volunteer organization prints and distributes texts and art, as well as provides direct aid to monks, nuns, monastic, and educational centers. For more details about volunteer opportunities at the Volunteer Center of Alameda County, call 925-462-3570.

- Berkeley Historical Society offers a volunteer workshop at 3 p.m. on Saturday, June 8, at 1931 Center Street. Learn how you can help to preserve and catalogue history. See the "insides" of museum work: preserving textiles, papers, and photographs and creating oral histories and exhibits. A variety of volunteer opportunities are available, such as planning programs and walking tours. The workshops are led by Katie Wadell, volunteer coordinator. Regular hours for the Berkeley History Museum are 1-4 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Call 848-0181 for more information, or visit the Web site at www.ci.berkeley.ca.us/histsoc/

THE NEW RANGE ROVER comes with lots of thoughful features including a climate control system that keeps dust out and activates when it senses smoke or exhaust odors.

2003 Range Rover takes the scare out of off-roading

MOTOR MATTERS

If you question whether the 2003 Range Rover is worth $70,000, drive it through a treacherous off-road course. Your answer will be an emphatic "yes!"

That's what convinced me of its value.

Although I drove on highways and wiggly mountainous roads with skepticism regarding its cost, it wasn't until I drove on an environmentally friendly course designed to demonstrate the abilities of this sports utility vehicle that I understood and appreciated the engineering that went into this all-new vehicle.

In a market that is loaded with SUVs, there is nothing that compares to this one.

This off-road course allowed me to sit behind the wheel and let the Range Rover maneuver the track. Although I guided the vehicle and occasionally touched the brake and gas pedals, for the most part, the less input from me, the better the outcome and performance.

When I went over the crest of a hill and down a steep 45-degree embankment, it was the Range Rover that got me safely to the bottom of the hill. I merely went along for the ride.

TOM KEANE
Keane on Wheels

The vehicle itself determined when to apply its brakes and power, using its traction control and torque-sensing Torsen central differential to change front- and rear-wheel torque depending on the traction.

Although engineers explained how the system worked, I didn't appreciate it until I drove over roads in which a row of indentations jostled one wheel while the opposite wheel rose above a mound. And yet I still moved forward.

This is not to say that other SUVs couldn't negotiate this course, but I doubt that I would have experienced the same level of safety and comfort.

Even though the Range Rover was being tossed over the gullies, I sat reasonably stable due to the air suspension that stabilizes the vehicle while the 19-inch wheels flopped up and down. I noticed this stabilizing feature while barreling around curves on the wiggly highway. I felt very little leaning.

Another comfort: A lot of dust was kicked up as I traveled over the dirt roads on the course. As soon as this SUV sensed dirt in the air, it automatically changed the climate control system to recirculate the interior air, keeping dust out

I'm told this feature also engages when the vehicle senses the odor of an exhaust system or cigar smoke

Gear up for a new art form: Duct tape designs on cars

BY DIANNE GLEI
AUTO EDITOR

My husband — as are most men — is a firm believer in duct tape. It has multiple uses, but it's also been regarded as ugly. Not anymore.

Now, there's a contest to see who can most creatively decorate their vehicle with Duck brand duct tape. This takes mobile advertising to a whole new level.

Maybe we should try to enter our 1990 Ford Taurus wagon — its paint job is peeling badly. There are lots of rusted-out vehicles in Hawaii that could benefit from some duct-tape decoration.

The "Stuck in Traffic" Contest seeks photos of these decorated vehicles and the winner receives $2,500.

According to a release from Manco Inc., the manufacturer, the contest lets people give their car an innovative and original makeover.

It also points out that Duck brand duct tape comes in more colors than the traditional silver, so budding artists can wrap their vehicle in such hues as camouflage, fluorescent yellow, orange, green or pink, or maybe all of them for a psychedelic rainbow effect.

Official contest rules and a registration form are available on-line at www.ducktapeclub.com. To enter the contest, participants must submit a photo of their duct-taped vehicle (it doesn't have to run). The winners will be selected based on several criteria including originality, quantity and colors of Duck tape used.

Deadline for entries is Aug. 9. Winners will be announced Sept. 4. Besides the first place prize, second place receives $1,000 and third place, $500.

Virtual car show

Here's another chance to show off your vehicle — at Pep Boys' second annual Virtual Car Show.

This competition offers owners the chance to win $1,000 in Pep Boys gift certificates, as well as the chance to be featured in a custom 2003 Pep Boys calendar, which will be available at any Pep Boys location nationwide.

The show takes place on the Internet until Sept. 2. Participants can stroll "virtual rows" of cars, trucks and vans representing various makes and models from the past and present — all without leaving their home or office.

Spectators can be part of the action, by registering their own cars in the show to compete in any of 12 classes, as well as take part in the voting process to select the winners.

"Car enthusiasts now have the chance to show off their wheels without ever leaving the comfort of their living rooms or having to worry about Mother Nature or transportation restrictions," said Bill Furtkevic, director of marketing communications for Pep Boys.

Applications can be found online at www.pepboyscarshow.com. To enter, owners submit an original, unpublished photo of their car, truck, van or SUV either online or by mail.

Entries are judged from the following classes: Chevrolet; Buick; Oldsmobile; Pontiac; Ford/Mercury; Pre-1949 Cars and Trucks; Pre-1995 Sport Compact; 1996 - 2002 Sport Compact; SUVs; Trucks; Vans or Unique/Other.

There will be one winner of the $1,000 gift certificate in each of the classes. The only problems I see with this are that it limits the camaraderie associated with car shows, and does a photo really do justice to a special vehicle?

Summer driving tips

The arrival of summer today means that vacation car trips are not far behind. Before venturing out on the road to the beach, mountains, desert or country, the California Department of Consumer Affairs wants you to be safe.

CAR TALK

Getting your car ready for the trip is as important as getting the family ready. Simple preventive steps can mean a trouble-free drive with more time to enjoy your destination, according to Katheleen Hamilton, director of the department.

Here are some recommendations:

Hot weather can be rough on cars as fluids and lubricants break down more quickly, so a pre-trip inspection by a qualified technican can make sure all the car's parts are in proper working order and that all fluid levels are full.

Things that should be checked are the air conditioning system, belts and hoses, and air pressure in all tires, including the spare to make sure they are properly inflated.

Batteries and battery cables should be inspected for corrosion, cracks and dirt. If it's near the end of the warranty for the battery, have it tested.

It's a lot easier to replace a dying battery before a trip than replace a dead one on the side of the road, Hamilton notes.

A licensed brake adjuster should inspect the brake pads and lining for wear.

You also should check your car's interior and exterior lights, including turn signals and high beams, to make sure they work.

The cooling system should be flushed and refilled according to the manufacturer's service intervals and specifications, including replacement of the pressure cap.

All of this is common sense, but as the old adage goes, "an ounce of prevention is worth of pound of cure." And, time is money.

Replace spark plug wires if imperf...

KNIGHT RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

BRAD BERGHOLDT
Auto QnA

Q How often should spark plug wires be replaced?
Jim Hastings, San Jose, Calif.

A In theory, spark plug wires can last the life of a vehicle.

The most common problems are corrosion of the terminals, abrasion or burning against hot or sharp objects, and torn boots or separation from the terminal from rough handling during spark plug replacement.

Unless they look perfect, I'd replace them.

Q I have a 1995 Honda Civic hatchback with a manual drive and 24,000 miles.

When the car is declutched into neutral and the foot brake is applied, the car often revs very fast — as if I stepped on the gas.

When the car is idling and I step hard on the brake pedal it revs as if I were stepping on the gas pedal.

What could be causing the revs to soar when I step on the brake?
Richard Lee, Seattle, Wash.

A It sounds like either the Civic's power brake booster is failing or the powertrain control module has a mind of its own.

Most cars and light trucks employ a vacuum-operated power brake booster to reduce brake pedal effort.

This round metal chamber is located on the vehicle firewall between the brake master cylinder and brake pedal assembly.

Inside is a large flexible diaphragm that multiplies brake pedal force. With the brakes at rest, engine vacuum is applied to both sides of the diaphragm.

As the brakes are applied, atmospheric pressure is admitted to the rear half of the chamber, applying force to the diaphragm and output pushrod.

It's possible the booster is a leaking vacuum as the brakes are applied, due to a control valve or diaphragm fault. The engine, under the right conditions, will increase in speed as a result of this air bypassing the throttle.

Have you noticed an increase in brake pedal effort? If so, that's a clue the booster may be in trouble.

Thoughtfulness could be the Range Rover's middle name. For example, this SUV is capable of increasing its off-road ground clearance by elevating the underside a few inches.

But just prior to coming to the end of a journey, I touched a button on the door and the Range Rover lowered itself for easier exiting for my passenger and me.

More thoughtful input is found in the steering system. The steering wheel had a pleasant firmness when I turned in city traffic, but firmed up even more at highway speed.

Also, a navigational system with voice commands advised me how to get to my destination with exceptional accuracy.

Meantime, I enjoyed the 12-speaker sound system and all the ambiance of leather, wood and polished panels.

The feeling of being in control at all times is invaluable. After programming the driver's seat to my exact specifications using the 10-way power seats controls, I was able to maneuver with precision due to my visibility from the driver's seat.

A rise in the panel over each fender above the front tires allowed me to know exactly where each wheel was located.

But is it worth $70,000? Just take this vehicle to an off-road course; I'm sure you'll agree it is.

find the correct air pressure for the tires.

You probably do know there's a number on the side of your tire. That number tells you the maximum amount of air pressure that the tire can handle, but it is not usually the amount of air that should be in your car's tires. The same tires are put on a lot of different vehicles — cars of different sizes, weights, etc.

In order to know how much pressure should be in your tires, open the driver's side door and look at the sticker in the door jamb. The number found here may be significantly different than the number on the tires. It may say 28 (pounds per square inch) when the tire itself has the number 40 on it.

Go with what the manufacturer recommends for your car (that's the 28, not the 40); the manufacturer knows.

To check the tires, you need a tire gauge. A good one can be purchased at any auto parts store or large discount store for about $5. Take the valve cap off of the tire and quickly push the end of the gauge with the needle onto the valve and release it.

At the other end of the gauge, look at the number poking out to see how many pounds of pressure are left in the tire. Add air if you need to.

Here's something important: The best time to check tire pressure is when the tires are cold — in the morning before you've driven the car. When a car is driven, tires heat up, and checking them then will give you an inaccurate reading.

A monthly tire safety check will take you only five minutes and you'll use up about three of those minutes checking your four tires. Use the other two minutes to check the tread.

This is important because good tread gives good traction; bad tread can be bad news. Really bad news.

Grab a penny and stick it in the groove of the tire with Lincoln's head pointing down, into the tire. If you can see most or all of Lincoln's head — meaning it's not buried in the groove — then you need new tires.

While you're checking, look for any cracks, blisters, bulges or unusual wear patterns in the tread or sidewall of the tire. If you notice anything unusual, have your tires inspected.

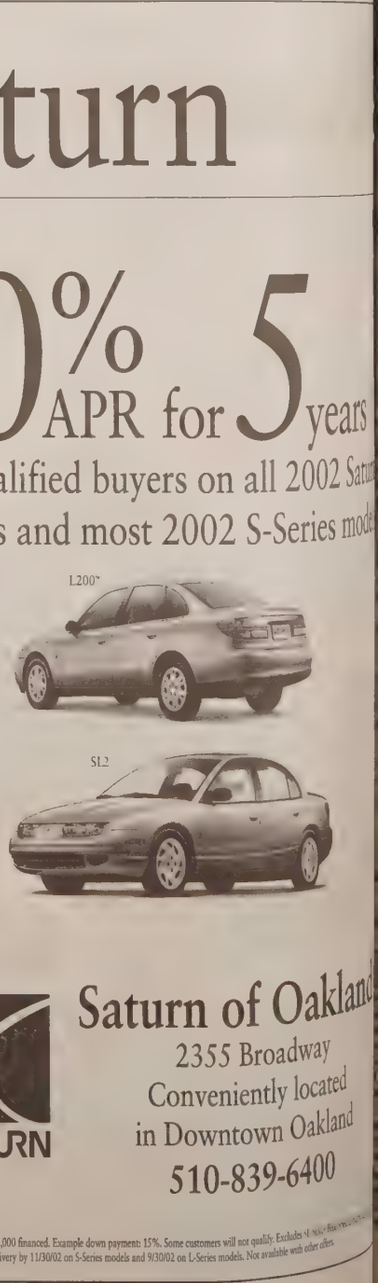

Another thing to look for are tread wear bars. These are patches of smooth rubber that manufacturers put on tires to give you another way to check your tread. If you can see a wear bar, it means you need new tires.

With so many women now being responsible for their own car care, let's commit to this simple recipe for tire safety: five minutes of your time every month, a tire gauge, and a penny.

And what the heck, make it 10 minutes and check your husband's car tires, too.

had the blue body and black ainted and also replaced the taupe mohair upholstery.

Reyburn replaced the fabric roof insert, as well as the rubber running boards. After nine months he had the car in pristine condition.

Then the strangest happenstance occurred: He didn't have the time to drive his like-new Chevrolet. Aware that the worst thing for a car is disuse, he decided to find a good home for his 1931 Chevrolet so that it wouldn't just sit and rot.

Reyburn knew exactly where to look. He called his nephew, Mike Anson, who would take good care of the refurbished Chevrolet. "My uncle passed it on to me with two stipulations," Anson says. "I had to agree that I would drive it on a regular basis and I would, in turn, pass it on to my son Rory when I was tired of it."

After quickly agreeing to the terms, Anson says, "I rushed down to San Diego from Los Angeles before he could change his mind and trailered the car back to L.A. in December 1993."

Anson continues, "That was the last time the car was trailered." Routine oil and filter changes were all that Anson had to contend with until a compression check revealed a bad valve. With the cylinder head removed, a San Diego machine shop soon fixed the problem.

Now that the Chevrolet was fitted with a new exhaust system and the engine was tuned to perfection, Anson took his car for a high speed run to Bolsa Chica Beach along the Pacific Coast Highway in Huntington Beach.

"Flat out, the car will do an indicated 47 mph at sea level," Anson says. "That's plenty fast for a car with mechanical drum brakes."

Anson adds that 47 mph in a 1931 Chevrolet is as thrilling as 125 mph in a new Camaro. All the gauges function properly now, unlike when Anson received the car. "I once ran out of fuel and now have a painter stir stick with a mark on it indicating the full line," he says.

Anson estimates highway mileage of about 15 mpg with the single barrel updraft carburetor fed by a mechanical, diaphragm-type pump.

To keep the occupants of the cabin comfortable, the flat windshield, with a World War II "C" gas ration stamp on the lower right corner, can be hand-cranked up to create a 2-inch opening at the bottom.

The rear window, likewise, can be hand-cranked down the same amount to create a genuine, no-cost, flow-through ventilation system.

"It's not all that easy to drive, but it is lots of fun." Anson reports that he is honoring the deal he made with his uncle.

"It's a clean driver, not a trailer queen museum piece and I'm keeping my word — I drive it about six to eight times a year," he says. "My son Rory may have a long wait because I'm not tired of the 71-year-old Chevy yet," Anson concludes.

ower and redesigns, apparent Seville, led to short-lived sales Cadillac's image still sagged. illac, which had held the top r luxury vehicles for decades, hind cross-town rival Lincoln and later fell further in the rankings below import marques.

Cadillac appears on the upswing again, however. General Motors finally has focused on its flagship luxury division, which turns 100 this year. It is pouring money — $4 billion over the next few years — into new products, exclusive to Cadillac. Further, Cadillac has charted a clear course.

All vehicles, which include not only cars but also trucks, sport utilities and things in between, are designed and engineered to fit Cadillac's Arts & Science philosophy.

Two prevailing themes stand out in Cadillac's illustrious history: it often is first to introduce new technology and it is renowned for avant-garde styling, epitomized by 1950s exaggerated tailfins.

The 1999 Evoq concept sports car illustrated the new direction. Laden with technology, the Evoq sported edgy styling, now featured on new Cadillacs.

I find the new theme lacking the grace of Cadillacs-past, yet it stands out in a crowd and is catching on in some circles.

Cadillac sales so far this year are up 10 percent — 24 percent in April alone, said Cadillac General Manager Mark LeNeve.

"The Escalade helped us crack the code for attracting new buyers," said LeNeve. The 2002 Escalade adopts the entire Arts & Science theme. Buyers include young, urban people, including high-profile hip-hop stars.

Cadillac recently added the Escalade EXT, a sport utility with a pickup bed based on the Chevrolet Avalanche. Arriving this fall, another Escalade variant called the Escalade ESV is a long wheelbase sport utility based on the Chevrolet Suburban.

Similarly, the 2002 CTS, introduced earlier this year, appears to be a hit. Replacing the Catera, the CTS is the first car to fully embody the Arts & Science philosophy.

It is also the first vehicle to ride on GM's new rear-wheel-drive world platform called Sigma, which will be exclusive to Cadillac. Riding on the same Sigma platform will be the SRX, recently unveiled to the press and on sale next spring.

Based loosely on the Vizon concept car, the SRX ("sporty, reconfigurable crossover") is a performance-oriented sport wagon or sport utility based on the CTS to compete against vehicles like the BMW X5, only with more function — like seven-passenger seating.

Also going into production in 2003 will be the XLR sports car, based on the Chevrolet Corvette and fashioned after the Evoq.

Meantime, a new Seville, which also uses the CTS' Sigma platform, is under development for 2004. A redesigned DeVille is planned for mid-decade, though debate rages as to whether it should remain front-wheel drive or shift to rear-drive like everything else.

At the same time, Cadillac is weeding out the old. The Eldorado disappears after this year's production run.

While hopes are high with Cadillac's recent U.S. sales resurgence, company officials are disappointed with Cadillac sales overseas. They say the true measure of Cadillac's turnaround will be when Cadillacs are the hit of Paris, London, Frankfurt and Tokyo, in the back yards of their most formidable competitors.

Maybe that's when I'll be ready to declare a Cadillac turnaround as well.

Cash rebates on cars are now raised from $500 to $2,500 on mid-size cars such as the Pontiac Grand Prix and Buick Century, as well as the Chevrolet Malibu and Impala.

A rebate of up to $750 is being offered on the TrailBlazer and a $500 rebate for the Silverado.

Tougher tire standards: The National Traffic Safety Administration is considering establishing higher standards for the durability of tires.

The agency's proposal would require that tires perform better under hard wear conditions such as heat and underinflation.

WITH ARRIVAL OF SUMMER, it's time to tune up and clean up the RV both inside and out to get it ready for road trips.

Out of hibernation: getting RV up and running

MOTOR MATTERS

VERN PARKER
Classic Classics

Many RVs are tucked carefully away to sleep through the winter to await the new travel and camping season. This seems harmless enough, but even if you are fastidious about winter storage preparation, your RV will need some work come summer.

Sooner or later, you need to gather your courage, take a deep breath of fresh air and open the RV door for the first time in many months. There are several procedures and steps you can take to help get your RV ready for the new travel season.

■ Wash the exterior, including the roof, and give it a healthy waxing or other protective treatment as appropriate.

■ Inspect the window, access door and compartment door sealant for possible bad spots that could cause water leaks and repair as needed.

■ Inflate the tires to the proper pressure, and inspect the tire sidewalls and tread for cracks, thin spots and other signs of aging. Inspect and grease the suspension components, and check for loose hardware that may need to be secured.

If it's a trailer, inspect the electric brake wiring for signs of damage or undue wear and tear.

■ If you had removed the battery for winter storage — a good step to take no matter what climate zone you live in — start by cleaning the entire battery with baking soda and water, and check the electrolyte level in each cell.

Top the cells up with distilled water as needed, and recharge the battery if you didn't keep it on a storage-type trickle charger all winter. Clean the cable contacts before reinstalling the battery, bolt them snugly in place and apply one of the corrosion-deterrent sprays available from auto parts stores and RV shops.

■ The refrigerator is most often responsible for bad odors inside the RV. Thoroughly scrub the fridge inside with a non-abrasive antibacterial soap solution, dry it, and place a new open box of baking soda in the main compartment.

■ Remove the water heater access cover and vacuum out any accumulation of dust and debris. Inspect the burner and its orifice for insect nests; spiders seem especially drawn to this area of an RV.

Remove and inspect your sacrificial anode rod and replace it if it looks like it's corroded beyond practical use.

■ Drain your fresh-water system's portable antifreeze and sanitize the system. Do this by using a clean container to make a water and bleach mixture of about 1/4 cup household bleach to every 10 gallons of fresh-water capacity in your RV.

Add the mix to your fresh-water tank and completely fill the tank. Run the mix through the entire system and leave it in place for a few hours. Then drain the system and flush with fresh water.

Add about 1/4 cup of baking soda for each 20 gallons of fresh water to help eliminate any residual bad taste.

■ Do a complete flush and "scrub out" the black water tank. Start with about three bags of crushed ice and several buckets of water totaling about 10 gallons.

Dump the ice through the toilet valve and into the black water tank. Then dump in the water. Add a commercial black tank cleaner if desired.

Quickly, while the ice is still frozen, drive the motorhome or tow the trailer for several miles, making plenty of turns to slosh the ice and water back and forth in the tank

The ice acts as an abrasive and, as the mix sloshes back and forth, it scours much of any stubborn stuck-on debris from the tank walls. Drive to a dump station, empty the black tank, fill it with water and dump it again to finish flushing it out.

■ Remove the refrigerator access hatch and the sheet-metal access panel over the combustion chamber for the cooling unit. This allows you to inspect the burner area for any signs of spider webs or insect nests that may have accumulated during the winter.

Use a shop vac with a crevice tool to reach in and vacuum up any debris. Check the burner orifices for blockage. A small soft brush on the vacuum is useful for cleaning the cooling coils, electronics and gas plumbing in the fridge access area.

■ Collect any mothball remnants leftover from when you placed them inside cabinets, drawers and storage areas to deter rodent occupancy.

Finally, load up your hardware and food, switch off the cellphone and head for the back country for some relaxing fun. Your RV is now awake after its winter sleep and officially ready for the road.

Honda delivers on mid-size SUV with Pilot

BY G. CHAMBERS WILLIAMS III
SAN ANTONIO EXPRESS-NEWS

Honda's newest and best sport utility vehicle, the mid-size Pilot, is on the way to showrooms. Its official on-sale date was June 3.

Starting prices will be $27,360 (including $460 transportation) for the base LX model, which comes with a 3.5-liter V-6 engine, five-speed automatic transmission, cruise control, air conditioning, cloth seats, AM/FM/compact-disc stereo, power windows/mirrors/door locks, and power steering/brakes.

For the uplevel EX model, the price starts at $29,730, which includes the above equipment plus a power driver's seat, roof rack, upgraded stereo, roof luggage rack, automatic climate control, alloy wheels and remote keyless entry.

If you want leather seats, add $980. Dealer-installed accessories — the only other options — are a navigation system and a DVD entertainment system.

The Pilot is a less-expensive version of the Acura MDX, which is the mid-size SUV market's leading luxury model. Introduced just last year, the MDX, whose prices begin at $32,500, quickly became popular with upscale consumers just like Honda's Odyssey minivan has.

Both the MDX and the Pilot, although sport utility vehicles, are based on the chassis of the Odyssey.

This carlike vehicle platform allows for a smooth, comfortable ride for these SUVs — much more so than comparably sized and priced truck-based sport utilities.

The Pilot is just one of three new vehicles expected to arrive during the rest of 2002 at Honda dealers.

Coming in September will be the newest generation of the mid-size Accord sedan, which replaces a model that has been on the market for about five years now.

Coming in December will be yet another Honda sport utility, this one called the Element.

Based on the boxy-looking Model X concept that was introduced earlier at the Detroit Auto Show, the Element will be about the same size as the compact Honda CR-V sport utility, upon which it is based.

Aimed at twenty-something men, the Element will be priced beginning about $16,000, and will have side doors that open in opposite directions like the so-called suicide doors of the old Lincolns.

This arrangement will allow for loading bulky cargo, such as extreme-sports equipment favored by twenty-something men, into the Element from the side.

Already this year, Honda has introduced the all-new Civic Hybrid and the Civic Si Hatchback, a performance-oriented car meant for the tuner crowd.

Dodge SRT-4 aims speed at 20-

BY JEFFREY MCCRACKEN
KNIGHT RIDDER NEWSPAPERS

DETROIT — Chrysler Group, trying to capitalize on the renewed popularity of compact race cars, or so-called pocket rockets, is introducing the 2003 Dodge SRT-4, a souped-up version of the automaker's Neon

Unveiled at the Los Angeles Auto Show, the SRT-4 is the second-quickest car in the Dodge lineup, accelerating from 0-60 miles per hour in 5.9 seconds, trailing only the Dodge Viper SRT-10.

It has a 2.4-liter, turbocharged, 205-horsepower engine. Appropriately, "SRT" is an acronym for street, road and track

The car is priced at $19,995 and will be manufactured at the Belvidere Assembly Plant in Illinois, home of the Neon.

Chrysler will likely pitch the SRT-4 as the fastest car available under $20,000

Most importantly for Chrysler, the company will sell the SRT-4 at a profit, a challenge for many domestic automakers that sell many small cars at a tiny loss.

"The SRT-4 will be fully accountable for a profit. That's important because we'd not been profitable in the small-car segment before," said Rich Schaum, Chrysler executive vice president of product design and quality.

Schaum said that until Chrysler introduced the highly popular PT Cruiser in 2000, the automaker was losing money on most every car it sold.

He says the SRT-4, and the more expensive two-seat Crossfire, also introduced at the Los Angeles Auto Show for sale in spring 2003, both will make money and are competitive against new cars from foreign automakers like Toyota and Nissan.

The SRT-4, to come out in spring 2003, will compete against the Honda Civic, Ford Focus SVT and Volkswagen GTI.

odge Ram 1500 Quad Cab tops pickup owner satisfaction survey

UBURN HILLS, Mich — The new 2002 Dodge Ram 1500 Quad Cab was ranked first in owner satisfaction among all four-door pickup trucks in AutoPacific Inc.'s 2002 Vehicle Satisfaction Value study.

"We are gratified by this most recent award as it relates directly to our customer satisfaction with the new Dodge Ram," said Jim Julian, vice president, Dodge Division Global Brand Center, DaimlerChrysler Corporation.

"We feel that the combination of Dodge Ram's bold, 'big rig' styling, versatile body and powertrain options make it a leader in the segment and provide the best package of features for our customers."

The Tustin, Calif.-based AutoPacific conducts the annual VSS study based upon research and feedback from 34,000 new vehicle owners.

Owners rank vehicles on overall satisfaction, as well as 43 specific areas related to operation, comfort, safety and purchase/lease experience.

Category winners receive AutoPacific's "speedform" award.

The Dodge Ram Quad Cab is unique among four-door pickup trucks, combining the versatility of four real doors without compromising payload or capability

The 2002 Dodge Ram Quad Cab remains essentially the same length as the previous-generation Ram model, making it easy to maneuver and pull in and out of the garage, yet benefitting from an extra three inches of interior room

The Dodge Ram 1500 provides a standard 6-foot-3-inch bed and an optional 8-foot bed.

Dodge Ram Quad Cab's rear doors open 85 degrees and the windows lower all the way down and Quad Cab's rear seats feature an optional 60/40 split to accommodate passengers and cargo together.

"The four-door pickup subset is really on a roll," said George Peterson, founder and president of AutoPacific.

"The Dodge Ram 1500 Quad Cab has just the right formula.

"All four-doors are front-hinged, and the cabin is usefully lengthened three inches to provide real adult-size accommodation in the rear seat

What's more, the rear seat area is a real treat when folded, providing dedicated in-cabin load space for cargo," he added

NOTICE
Contra Costa Newspapers/ Hills Newspapers
In cooperation with animal rescue groups, advises advertisers to always ask an adoption fee for animals. Giving away pets for "Free" can put them in danger. "Free" pets can easily end up being abused. No amount of screening can prevent this. Also, it is a good idea, when possible, to obtain the new owner's full name, full address & phone number. For more information, contact Tony LaRussa's Animal Rescue Foundation at 925-256-1ARF or your local pet adoption agency

MANUFACTURING

Associates

Steelscape, Inc. is building our applicant pool, which will be used for future hiring needs in our Manufacturing and Maintenance Departments at its state-of-the-art, team-based steel processing company in Richmond, California. We are a growing company with exciting employment opportunities.

Steelscape's compensation ranges from $15-22 per hour for Manufacturing Associates and $22-25 per hour for Maintenance Associates. In addition, Steelscape offers quarterly and annual bonuses depending on company & team performance. We offer matching 401K up to 6% along with a competitive benefits package.

To be eligible for employment at Steelscape, you must meet all of the following requirements: (i) have a high school diploma or equivalent, (ii) pass our Work Keys Pre-Employment Testing Program for Applied Technology, Applied Math, Observation and Teamwork, (iii) successfully complete a pre-employment physical including testing for substance abuse (drugs and/or alcohol).

To be eligible for a Maintenance Associate position, you must meet these additional requirements: Have an Associates Degree in millwright, mechanical or equipment maintenance technology or a certificate demonstrating completion of a government approved millwright apprenticeship program and a minimum of 4 years of recent experience as a Maintenance Millwright in a manufacturing environment.

We are seeking individuals with good interpersonal skills, judgment, strong initiative, high integrity, a capacity to anticipate, positive energy, and the drive to get things done in a team-based environment.

Steelscape is an employer who believes in diversity and equal opportunity and provides a drug free workplace. It is the policy of Steelscape to afford equal employment opportunity to all qualified persons regardless of their race, color, sex, religious preference, national origin, age, disability or veteran's status.

To obtain an application for employment and arrange for our pre-employment testing visit EASTBAY Works at 2300 El Portal Drive, Suite "B" San Pablo, CA 94806. Applications will be taken through June 28, 2002.

■ Dark-leaf greens — including broccoli rabe, swiss chard, collards, kale, mustard greens and spinach — have protective phytochemicals that act as antioxidants, blocking chemical reactions in the body that can damage tissues and promote cancer and premature aging.

Brown adds that greens have complex carbohydrates for energy, have no cholesterol and little or no fat. They are low in calories.

So they're good for you. But they are also versatile as foods.

You can eat some, such as arugula, watercress and mesclun greens, uncooked, Brown said. Other cruciferous greens, such as spinach and bok choy, can be sauteed quickly. Cabbage is great in soup.

Avoid steaming leafy greens, such as kale and collards, because it concentrates their bitterness, Brown warns. A better choice is a quick boil.

Take a pound of kale or a pound of collards. Wash and chop them. Then boil two cups of water in a skillet and add the greens. Put a lid on the skillet that seals it tightly.

Boil for 3 to 10 minutes, drain and then saute them in olive oil with garlic or minced ginger. This method of cooking preserves not only the rich green color but also the richness of the flavor. It also gets rid of the grassy flavor. Brown calls it the "quick-boil advantage."

No matter what you do with them, freshness is vital, not only for taste but for nutrient value. Most greens should be used within four days. Limp greens are past their prime in every way.

Here are some of Brown's general cooking guidelines:

To bring out greens' best flavor, try additions such as olive oil with garlic, leeks or ginger root; lemon juice or vinegar; or garnish with nuts, seeds, olives or even raisins. Strong flavors — hot, spicy or sour — usually enhance greens. Those with a distinctive flavor, such as mustard greens and broccoli rabe, benefit from milder-flavored accompaniments like pasta, rice or potatoes.

Carrots, red or yellow bell peppers, corn, tomatoes or yellow squash would all add sweetness.

Combine a dark green like spinach with a lighter green, such as mustard greens; or kale with celery. Nuts and seeds (pine nuts, walnuts, sesame or sunflower seeds) not only look nice on a plate but they add nutrients, flavor and crunch.

Tender greens such as spinach, chard, beet greens and bok choy can be sauteed with olive oil and garlic.

Greens will be greatly reduced after cooking. It may look like you are preparing more than you will actually be serving.

Consider incorporating greens into meals. Mix them into your casserole, pasta or lasagna dishes. Add to soups and stews and use as a bed for beans. Add to stir-fry or salad, or as a simple side dish.

The sweet carrots and leeks provide a good balance for the spicy mustard greens and mild kale. This is a great way to become acquainted with leafy greens. It will soon become a favorite side dish because it tastes so great, looks pretty on your plate, and it's so good for you.

MUSTARD GREENS, KALE AND CARROT STIR-FRY

4-6 cups each of kale and mustard greens
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
2 leeks, white and light green parts, washed and thinly sliced
2 large carrots, cut into matchsticks
Sea salt, to taste
2 tablespoons toasted sesame or sunflower seeds for garnish (optional)

Strip the leaves from the stalks and wash the greens in a bowl of cool water and drain. Roughly chop into bite-size pieces. Measure 4-6 cups of each and set aside.

Add the kale, mustard greens, a pinch of sea salt and stir-fry over high heat for 1-2 minutes. Add 3-4 tablespoons of water and the carrots. Cover and cook for 3-4 minutes, or until the greens are wilted and tender. Check occasionally and add more water if necessary to keep the greens from sticking to the wok.

Adjust seasonings and serve.

Garnish with toasted sesame or sunflower seeds if desired.

To toast the seeds, place them in a dry skillet and cook over medium-low heat, stirring often, until they are lightly browned and fragrant.

Makes 3-4 servings.

This recipe is high in important nutrients, easy, fast and delicious. The collards provide calcium, iron, vitamins A and C and chlorophyll. The mushrooms add protein, B2 and zinc and a satisfying flavor and texture.

QUICK COLLARDS WITH PORTABELLO MUSHROOMS

¾ to 1 pound of collard greens (6-7 cups chopped)
2 cups water
2 teaspoons extra virgin olive oil
1 teaspoons minced garlic, or more to taste
1/3 cup thinly sliced scallions, white and green parts
2 portabello mushrooms, with stems removed, cut into slices about 1 inch long
Sea salt, to taste
Tamari (wheat-free soy sauce) — optional

Remove stalks from collards, wash in a bowl of cool water and drain. Stack 4 or 5 leaves on top of each other. Roll into a cigar shape and slice into ribbons (¼ to ½ inch wide).

Bring water to a boil in a large pan, add collards, cover and cook for 8-10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Drain in a colander and set aside. (Save cooking liquid to drink, if desired.)

Heat oil in the same pan over medium heat. Add garlic and scallions and saute for about 30 seconds. Turn heat to medium-high and add mushrooms and a pinch of salt, to draw out some liquid. Cook for 5-6 minutes, stirring constantly, until tender.

Reduce heat to low, stir in collards, cover and cook 1-2 minutes, until hot. Mix in tamari, if using, and/or season with sea salt.

Other mushrooms can be substituted for portabellos — crimini mushrooms, sliced in half, are very good.

Makes 3-4 servings.

WHOLE FOODS® MARKET

A poblano appetizer wears the colors of independence

BY WILLIAM RICE
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

One trait of our Mexican neighbors that makes them so appealing is their commitment to incorporating food into festival and national holiday celebrations, no matter how big or small.

With Cinco de Mayo recently came the opportunity to taste a wide-ranging menu that included generous portions of spicy guacamole, deftly marinated seafood, and rich and complex mole. One particularly intriguing holiday dish was chiles en nogada, batter-fried stuffed poblano peppers with a creamy nut sauce. Dedicated to the independence of Mexico, won from Spain in 1821, it contains green peppers, red pomegranate seeds and white nuts, the three colors of the Mexican flag. It also contains enough ingredients and steps that it's not too early to begin preparation for the annual independence feasts on Sept. 15 and 16.

Consultation with Gloria Duarte, owner of the charming Elmhurst, Ill., restaurant Las Bellas Artes, produced the recipe offered here. The poblano chile pepper, sometimes called pasilla, is large, triangular in shape and a shiny black-green in color. When allowed to ripen and then dried, it is called ancho; charred when green, peeled and dried it is called pasado.

The poblano is right for stuffing because of its size (up to 5 inches in length), fleshy texture and distinctive taste that may or may not have a spicy bite. Do not remove the stem, because it is a natural handle.

CHILES EN NOGADA

For the sauce:

1-½ cups pecans
½ cup blanched almonds
1-½ to 2 cups whipping cream
¼ cup sherry
3 tablespoons sugar, or to taste
1 teaspoon salt, or to taste

For the filling:

2 pounds boneless pork (substitute beef or chicken), cut in small chunks
2 onions, one peeled and quartered, the other finely chopped
2 cloves garlic, peeled
1/3 cup vegetable oil
1 cup tomato puree
1 apple, peeled, finely chopped
2 mangos, peeled, chopped
1 plantain, peeled, chopped
2 peaches, peeled, chopped
¼ cup candied citron, finely chopped
¼ cup currants
½ cup toasted pecans, chopped
1 tablespoon sugar, or to taste
Salt and pepper to taste

For the peppers:

12 poblano peppers, roasted, peeled
1 cup flour
6 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon salt
Vegetable oil for frying
Seeds of 1 pomegranate, for garnish
Parsley sprigs, for garnish

■ Prepare the nut sauce in two batches. Place half the pecans, almonds, whipping cream, sherry, sugar and salt in a blender or food processor. Blend on low until nuts are evenly chopped. Do the same with the second batch. Combine both batches, adjust seasoning; if too thick (it should flow like lava), add more cream. Set aside.

■ For the filling place the pork, quartered onions and garlic in a saucepan. Cover with water, bring to a boil and simmer 15 to 20 minutes, or until cooked through. Drain, discard the onion and garlic, and shred or finely chop the pork. Set aside.

■ Heat the vegetable oil in a large skillet. Saute the chopped onion until softened, then add the tomato puree and simmer for 2 minutes, stirring several times. Add the pork, fresh fruit, citron, currants, toasted pecans, sugar, salt and pepper. Cook over medium heat for about 5 minutes. Taste and adjust seasoning as desired.

■ Cut a slit in one side of each pepper and very carefully remove the seeds and veins. Pat the chiles dry and spoon some filling into each pepper. Do not overstuff.

■ Spread the flour on a large plate. Beat the egg whites until stiff but not dry. Beat the yolks with 1 teaspoon salt until thickened. Quickly but gently fold the yolks into the whites to make a batter.

■ Heat about ½-inch of oil in a large skillet. Lightly coat the chiles with flour. Holding a stuffed chile by its stem, dip it into the egg batter to coat completely. Fry the chiles in the hot oil, one or two at a time, until golden all over. Drain on paper towels and let cool to room temperature.

■ Place a stuffed pepper on a plate. Pour sauce on and beside the pepper. Garnish with pomegranate seeds and parsley and serve.

Makes 12 appetizer servings.

EVEN THE COLORS OF CHILES EN NOGADA (batter-fried stuffed poblano peppers with a nut sauce) reflect those of the Mexican flag.

How to microwave an artichoke to perfection

BY ELIZABETH PIVONKA, PH.D.
NAPSI

Unless you grew up in artichoke country-California-you may be a little hesitant when it comes to cooking artichokes. But with a microwave, a sharp knife and scissors you can treat yourself to the wonderful flavor of artichokes at home. Here are five easy steps that will take you from the supermarket to the last delicious bite of the artichoke's heart.

BARRY WONG/SEATTLE TIMES

THE ARRIVAL OF SPRING also means the arrival of fresh artichokes.

• Start by choosing firm artichokes with tightly packed leaves. Fresh artichokes are compact and heavy for their size. They can be stored in a perforated plastic bag in the refrigerator for up to a week.

• Rinse artichokes well. True aficionados leave the stem on since it is an extension of the heart or you can cut off the stem right at the base. Cut off the top third of the artichoke and snip off the tips of the remaining leaves with scissors, if desired.

• Place the artichokes in a microwave-safe container and add 1/2 a cup of water for each artichoke. Cover them with a lid or microwaveable plastic wrap and cook one artichoke on High for about 6 to 8 minutes. Add about 4 to 6 minutes to the cooking time for each additional artichoke. Exact cooking time will vary with the size of the artichoke and the power of your microwave.

• Let the artichokes stand for a minute or two, and then test them for doneness; the leaves near the center will pull off easily when the artichokes are done. Drain and cool.

• Press your thumbs in the center of the artichoke and pull the leaves toward the outside to expose the light green cone of leaves in the center. Use a spoon to scrape out small purple-tipped petals and the fuzzy fibers that are just on top of the tender artichoke heart. Serve artichokes hot or chilled. Dip the base of each leaf into your favorite sauce and pull it through your teeth to scrape off the artichoke meat at the base. Continue until you reach the heart, and enjoy each wonderful bite.

Artichoke nutrition

Containing only 25 calories each, artichokes are fat and cholesterol-free and low in sodium, but loaded with nutrients. They are a good source of folate, magnesium, fiber and vitamin C, making them a terrific choice for today's on-the-go, health and diet-conscious population. Eating five or more fruits or vegetables every day helps reduce the risk of developing diseases like cancer, stroke, and heart disease.

CREAMY ARTICHOKE DIP

1/2 cup fat-free sour cream
1/2 cup low fat mayonnaise
1/4 cup finely chopped fresh parsley
1 teaspoon dried dill
1 small clove of garlic, finely minced
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard

Mix all ingredients in a small bowl and refrigerate until ready to serve.

Makes about 1-1/4 cups.

Cucumber and sour cream dressing

In a small sieve set over a bowl, toss half a cucumber, peeled, seeded and grated, with ¼ teaspoon salt and let drain for 10 minutes.

In a blender, blend 2 teaspoons Dijon-style mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar, pepper and salt to taste. Add ½ cup sour cream, ¼ cup plain yogurt and 1 tablespoon snipped fresh dill.

Blend the mixture, scraping down the sides until it is smooth. Add the cucumber and blend until combined.

Garlicky beans with dill

Trim, string and rinse 1 pound fresh green beans. Cut into 1-inch lengths and steam until tender, 10 or 15 minutes. Drain.

Melt 1 ½ tablespoons butter in a skillet, add 6 cloves garlic, peeled and halved, and cook over a very low heat about 5 minutes until soft. Mash or remove garlic, whichever you prefer. Add 1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill and stir.

Add beans and ¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes, optional, cover and cook over low heat about 5 minutes. Salt to taste and serve.

Springtime pasta primavera

In a saucepan, whisk together 1 cup chicken broth, ¼ cup dry white wine, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 teaspoons dried or 1 tablespoon fresh dill weed, 1 teaspoon garlic salt and ¼ teaspoon dried thyme leaves.

Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; simmer 1 minute. Add ¼ cup heavy cream. Gently stir in about 6 cups cooked linguine and 4 cups blanched vegetables such as baby carrots, sugar snap peas, broccoli and asparagus.

Roasted red pepper dill dip

Mix well 1 cup mayonnaise; 1 (7-ounce) jar roasted red bell peppers, drained and chopped; 1 teaspoon lime or lemon juice; ¾ teaspoon dried dill weed or 2 teaspoons fresh; ½ teaspoon ground mustard; and ¼ teaspoon garlic powder. Cover and refrigerate at least 2 hours.

DIABETES PREVENTION STUDY
If you have been told that you have borderline diabetes, high blood sugar or impaired glucose tolerance (blood sugars between 95 and 126) and have had heart disease, heart surgery or are at risk for heart disease (i.e. family history, parent or sibling with diabetes, current smoker, high blood pressure, low HDL cholesterol or high LDL cholesterol), we would like to invite you to participate in a six-year study of two FDA approved medications. Dr. Richard Weinstein and Diablo Clinical Research are conducting this study to determine if these medications can prevent or slow the progression of diabetes among people with impaired glucose tolerance.
Men and women ages 50 or greater that have such risks are invited to participate in this clinical study. Study participation includes at no charge all related medications, laboratory tests, electrocardiograms and physical examinations.

Savory and quick summer fare all wrapped up

NAPSI

Summer days are perfect for gathering friends and family together at a backyard barbecue or picnic in the park. At this time of year, it is important to have recipes that are not only crowd pleasing and easy to prepare, but are also easy to pack up and travel with when needed.

If the heat drives you to the beach or the mountains, bring these delicious travel buddies:

Served warm or cold, Savory Potato Wraps make a delicious and portable lunch for all to enjoy. Idahoan Original mashed potato flakes, prepared as directed on the box and spread onto the tortilla wrap, are what makes this dish exceptional.

The mashed potatoes absorb and enhance the flavors of each ingredient packed into the wrap-diced turkey or ham, lettuce, and red pepper or tomato-making it a substantial and mouth-watering meal that will have everyone reaching for seconds.

A cookbook, A Taste of Idaho, offers a variety of creative recipes that showcase the versatility of potatoes from hearty, start-the-day-right breakfast dishes and tasty scones to main course dinners.

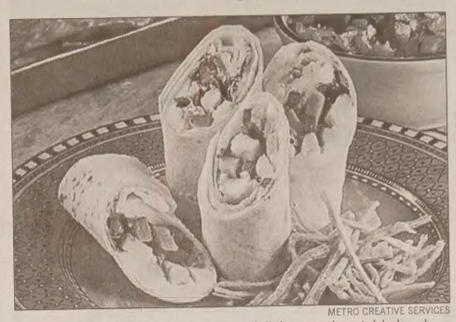

To receive a free copy, send two Idahoan UPC codes to: Idahoan Foods, P.O. Box 130, Lewisville, Idaho 83431. Please include your name, address, and daytime telephone number on a 3 x 5 card. Allow 4-6 weeks for delivery.

SAVORY POTATO WRAPS

1 cup Idahoan Original Mashed Potato Flakes
4 red pepper or flour tortillas (9-inch)
1/2 pound cooked turkey breast or ham, thinly sliced (approximately 8 slices) or diced into small chunks
1 cup shredded lettuce
1 cup diced red bell pepper or tomato

Prepare potatoes as package directs; cool to room temperature. Spread each tortilla with 1/4 cup mashed potatoes. Top with 2 slices of turkey or ham, 1/4 cup shredded lettuce and red pepper. Roll up and place seam-side down.

Makes 4 wraps.

Quick one-dish entrees are great for easy weekday dining

BY RAEANNE SARAZEN
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Unlike hamburgers that need some fat in the meat to produce a juicy burger, sloppy Joes can be made with lean ground beef because it is cooked in a sauce. Yes, it is a "sloppy" meal, especially for kids, but it also is quick and easy.

For a change of pace, team the sandwiches with cubed pineapple and try frozen yogurt for dessert.

Time-saving tips: Make do with ingredients you have on hand: Instead of onions use green onions, shallots or minced dried onion. Instead of bell pepper, use other peppers, bottled roasted red peppers or chopped fresh herbs, such as parsley or cilantro. Instead of Worcestershire sauce, use steak or chili sauce. Instead of home fries, use frozen fries or other potatoes.

SLOPPY JOES WITH HOME FRIES

Home fries:
1 ½ pounds russet or Yukon gold potatoes, peeled, cut into wedges
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper

Sloppy Joes:
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 small onion, chopped
½ red or green bell pepper, diced
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 pound 95 percent lean ground beef or ground turkey
½ cup each: ketchup, water
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
Freshly ground pepper
4 kaiser rolls, toasted

■ Heat oven to 450 degrees. For fries, place potatoes in microwave-safe bowl; cover with plastic wrap. Cook in microwave on high 10 minutes. Transfer potatoes to foil-lined jellyroll pan sprayed with vegetable oil spray. Toss potatoes with oil, salt and pepper to taste. Cook, turning once, until golden, about 20 minutes.

■ Meanwhile, for sloppy Joes, heat oil in medium non-stick skillet. Add onion and pepper; cook until slightly softened, about 2 minutes. Add garlic; cook 1 minute. Add ground beef; cook, breaking up pieces, until browned and crumbled, about 4 minutes. Mix in ketchup, water, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper to taste; simmer until flavors are blended, about 15 minutes. Serve on toasted rolls with potatoes on the side.

Preparation time: 25 minutes. Cooking time: 30 minutes. Yield: 4 servings.

Pristine vistas. Icy, clear water. The world's best seafood. Right on, Mother Nature.
Come taste the best seafood the world has to offer.
The good news is we're serving up some of the best crab, salmon and halibut that Mother Nature has to offer. The bad news is, it won't last long, so we'd recommend you stop in soon.

Wine of the week: 2000 J.P. Chenet Cabernet-Syrah

BY WILLIAM RICE
CHICAGO TRIBUNE

June is a perfect month to introduce you to wines of summer. Here's a cheerful and charming bargain red from Languedoc-Roussillon, a region in southwest France known for producing good value wines.

Chenet has blended 60 percent cabernet sauvignon and 40 percent syrah to deliver a cherry and black currant aroma tinged with black pepper. In the mouth, the wine is round and soft (it matures in steel tanks, not oak barrels) but not flabby.

At a suggested price of $7, this is a wine to enjoy in the back yard while the grill does its thing, or to invite along on a picnic. Drink it with burgers or shish kebab, barbecued turkey or sausages, or any cheese. Incidentally, the bent neck on the bottle is not an optical illusion; it's a hallmark of Chenet wines.
